Electors In Three Dominion Ridings Cast Votes To-day

Heavy Vote in Restigouche-Madawaska and Yamaska Is Reported

Snow Storm Creates Difficulties For Voters in Mackenzie Area

Electors trooped to the polls today in three federal constituencies in as many provinces. Canadian Press dispatches to The Times told of the voting in the by-election in Mackenzie, Sask., near the heart of the prairies; in Yamaska, on Quebec's south shore of the St. Lawrence, and in Restigouche-Madawaska in the northern neck of New Brunswick.

The vote, agriculturists predominating, was fairly heavy. In Mackenzie, though, a snowstorm to-day made travel difficult.

With 111 polls opened in Restigouche-Madawaska, for a total population of 54,398, balloting closed at 6 p.m. (2 p.m. Victoria time).

Smallest of the three ridings, fourteen polls were thrown open in Yamaska for a population of 16,820. The polls also closed in that constituency at 6 p.m. (3 p.m. Victoria time).

In Mackenzie, Sask., 119 polls recorded the vote of the electors where the constituency has a population of 44,869. The polls closed at 6 p.m. (4 p.m. Victoria time).

Mackenzie electors had four aspirants from which to make a choice, namely, J. S. MacMillan, Liberal; S. H. Edgar, Conservative; L. St. G. Stubbins, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation; and L. P. McNamee, United Front.

Milton N. Campbell, Progressive, was the member for Mackenzie. His appointment to the tariff board created the vacancy.

IN YAMASKA

A straight party fight was waged in Yamaska between Aime Boucher, Liberal, and Paul E. Comtois, Conservative. Mr. Boucher got a one-vote decision over Mr. Comtois in the 1930 general election, but the courts unseated him on charges of malpractice.

Three names were on the ballot in Restigouche-Madawaska: J. E. Michaud, Liberal; Paul L. Dube, Conservative; and J. L. G. Annett, Farmer-Labor. The seat went Conservative in a straight party contest in 1930 by a majority of 549 for M. D. Cormier, Conservative, who died last January.

WINNIPEG MAN INJURED BY THUG

Winnipeg, Oct. 23.—Marauding gunmen were active in Winnipeg over the week-end, but received little for their efforts.

A taxi driver, Fred Reynolds, to-day was suffering from two severe scalp wounds. He was slugged by a lone hold-up man who escaped with $4.

W. H. Drillon, laundry night watchman, was severely bound while two armed gunmen made several futile attempts to open the company's safe.

Saw "Caddy" While Fishing Near Here

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Bryden Say Serpent Came Within Twenty-five Feet of Boat

E. Goodland Says Serpents Disappear When Sighted Because of Shyness

A week after Major W. H. Langley reported that he saw Cadobrasaurus, it was seen by Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Bryden, 2411 Mowat Street, while fishing off Gonzales Point, near Trial Island, they told The Times to-day. According to Mrs. Bryden "Caddy" was seen by them between 3 and 4 o'clock, swimming close to the rocks of the island, and at one time came within twenty-five feet of them.

"It was a dull day and we were out fishing," Mrs. Bryden said. "We were quite close to Trial Island when I saw this thing some distance away. I did not pay much attention at first, but it came up within twenty-five feet of our boat and I called to my husband, who was rowing and had his back turned. I was awfully scared at the sight of the thing, but after my husband consoled me and told me that there was no need to worry, I became quite interested in his antics for the few moments that I saw him.

DIRTY GREEN
"He was a dirty green in color and his serrated back resembled a fan as he undulated in the water. I thought at first it was a whale and so did my husband, but whales don't have serrated backs and for that reason we were not just sure what it was. I am convinced that it was not a whale, a porpoise or a seal though, because I have seen them before."

BROADCAST WIRES CUT

Servicemen From Liberal By-election Meeting in Quebec Halted By Plotters

Hon. Ernest Lapointe Addressing People When Link With Montreal Cut

Canadian Press
Montreal, Oct. 23.—Telephone wires carrying words of Liberal speakers in the Dominion by-election campaign in the Quebec constituency of Yamaska for broadcast from a Montreal radio station were deliberately cut, according to a report by the Bell Telephone Company to the radio station to-day.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, M.P., Quebec, former Minister of Justice, was addressing Liberals at St. Francois du Lac yesterday evening when the broadcast was interrupted.

An investigation by the telephone company resulted in a statement the telephone wires had been cut by some unknown persons "with malicious intent." The wires were severed near Sorel.

Police have been asked to investigate. The wires were repaired to-day.

BANK ROBBED

Associated Press
Brainerd, Minn., Oct. 23.—Five Yukon machine gun bandits overpowered fourteen persons in the First National Bank in the heart of this city of 10,000 to-day, shot up the inside and outside of the structure and adjoining buildings and fled with $32,000 in cash.

None of the patrons and employees imprisoned in the washroom and a customer's room of the bank was hurt, but at least four pedestrians were in the line of fire while bullets splattered against buildings and perforated automobiles as the raiders' car roared out of town with weapons spitting fire.

EDMONTON HAS SNOW BLANKET

At Smith, in the Peace River country, ten inches of snow fell.

ARMS CONFERENCE HOLIDAY IS URGED

Immediate Adjournment When Delegates Assemble October 26 Advocated By Many; British View Is to the Contrary

Associated Press
Geneva, Oct. 23.—Immediate adjournment may be voted when the World Disarmament Conference is reconvened October 26 after the ten-day recess. This was indicated strongly to-day in international circles, where many believe a longer period is needed to permit a calming of spirits. Also, it is said, statesmen need to concentrate on grave economic problems confronting them before returning to the council tables.

Meanwhile, in direct opposition to earlier views, the opinion seemed to be spreading it might be wise to encourage a Franco-German economic accord. This might open a road to eventual agreement on disarmament, it is argued.

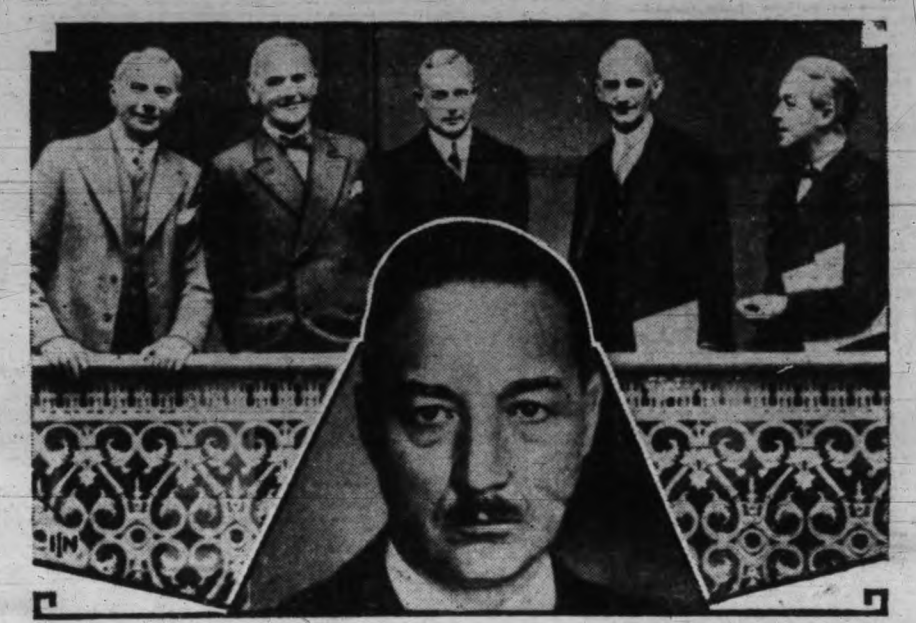

LABOR ORGANIZATION
Officially the International Labor Organization does not know where it stands in reference to Germany. All three German members were absent when the governing board met in the autumn session. The German consul-general at Geneva announced the resignation affected both the League and the labor organization.

Leon Jouhaux, French labor member, insisted on knowing why the German labor delegate, Leuchner, was not in attendance.

The bureau under Lord Leuchner was in a concentration camp, as he had been arrested after his last visit to Geneva.

Associated Press
London, Oct. 23.—It was indicated authoritatively shortly before a Cabinet session to-day that the government opposes an adjournment of the Disarmament Conference unless it is coupled with a provision for resumption of work at some future date.

Withdrawn From Disarmament Conference by Germany

Above are pictured the members of the German delegation to the Geneva Disarmament Conference who caused a world-wide sensation by withdrawing from the sessions. In top group are, left to right: Baron von Rheinbaben, General von Blomberg, Admiral von Freyberg, Ambassador Wozek and General Schonhelm. Inset is Count Rudolf Nodolny, chief of the delegation, who was not present when his compatriots announced the decision to withdraw. At the right is a picture of Baron von Neurath, German Foreign Minister, who from Berlin entered into a controversy with Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, as to statements made by Sir John.

Great Growd Around French Parliament During Tax Debate

With Daladier Cabinet Fighting With Back to Wall, Thousands of Police Keep Order in Streets; Compromise on Pay Cut

Paris, Oct. 23.—While soldiers stood on guard behind barricades outside the parliament building the government to-day accepted a compromise cutting the pay of functionaries about half the original demand in the budget balancing project of Premier Edouard Daladier.

Paris, Oct. 23.—Premier Edouard Daladier to-day began his last stand in a packed Chamber of Deputies with thousands of police behind barricades on guard outside the parliament building.

The Premier had show no disposition to surrender in his fight to balance the budget and protect the franc. His friends predicted overthrow of the government by showdown unless the Socialists should unexpectedly weaken their opposition.

Baricades of trucks were set outside the building and mounted squads backed by thousands of police went on guard to protect the Chamber from threatened demonstrations against various taxes.

Canadian Press
Dublin, Oct. 23.—The drawing was completed to-day for the $12,000,000 Irish Sweepstakes on the famous Cambridge Handicap, which will be run at Newmarket on Wednesday.

Of the total tickets drawn in the seventeen separate units, fifty-one go to Canadians, while thirty-four of the consolation prizes of $487 each go to Canada. Not all of the fifty-one drawing horses have got probable starters, but they are good for $2,800, anyway. First place holders get $140,000 each.

In the Reykjavik district, regarded as indicating countryside sentiment, repeal was approved by a more than 2 to 1 vote in the polling yesterday.

Chamber of Commerce Directors to Ask City to Reconsider Decision

Victoria Has Responsibility to Flying Public, Members Claim

The City Council will be requested by a special committee of the Chamber of Commerce directors to reconsider its decision to abandon its lease on the Gordon Head Airport site.

At a luncheon of the directors to-day, R. H. B. Ker, B. C. Nicholas and W. T. Strath spoke of the seriousness of the city's decision and felt that it should be reconsidered since it meant such a great deal to Victoria.

Mr. Ker realized that the city might have had good reasons for deciding to abandon the grounds, but it could not overlook its responsibility to provide some sort of a landing ground for all planes. A site near Victoria was the only spot for miles around where visiting planes might land and to give up the Gordon Head airport would mean that some landing ground for all planes in Canada would be about the only city in Canada which was not provided with a landing ground for airplanes, he said.

Mr. Ker suggested that the city had agreed to rebuild the fences around the property when the lease expired, that some arrangements might be made with the landowners whereby this would not be necessary.

LITVINOFF KEEPS ROUTE SECRET

Moscow, Oct. 23.—Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff hopes to travel incognito to Washington for his conversations with President Roosevelt and will leave Moscow without revealing his route to the United States, the time of his arrival there or identity of those who will accompany him.

This much was indicated to-day by the Foreign Office where officials flatly refused to reveal any information of M. Litvinoff's plans in representing Russia in negotiations looking to possible recognition by the United States. Officials denied he already had left.

SAYS BUILDING HAS TWO WALLS

James Maynard Finds Two Walls Missing After Buying Three-story Business Block

Canadian Press
Toronto, Oct. 23.—An attempt to gain access to the steel-sheathed vault of the Queen and Grant Street branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce here was discovered to-day by the staff on opening the strong box. Police judged by the extent of the operation the robbers had been working most of yesterday with acetylene torches.

Working from an empty apartment over the bank, the safe crackers ripped boards from the flooring and with the torches cut several large holes in the steel top of the vault.

Police said it probably would have taken the robbers at least twelve more hours to make an aperture large enough for a man to drop through into the vault.

When a man buys a $65,000 three-story building complete from real estate to roof and then later finds that he has bought a building with only two walls, that is, with only a front and a rear wall, with no walls on the east or the west sides, what can he, or should he, do?

This was the question raised here to-day by James Maynard, boot and shoe merchant.

"Charging that he had been sold such a building covering 648-647-649 Yates Street, Mr. Maynard is suing Sidney Clement Galpin and Walter Sydney Galpin of The Moorings, 23 St. John's Road, Esplanade, Sussex, and Albert Edward Brayne, 30 Essex Street, Strand, London, all as trustees of the will of Thomas Dixon Galpin. C. H. O'Halloran is conducting the case for him.

The case came up before Chief Justice Morrison of the Supreme Court this morning, when C. J. Prior, defence counsel, applied to the court for an order to have Mr. O'Halloran furnish further and better particulars regarding items in his statement of claim.

Mr. O'Halloran set out the three-story building on Yates Street was constructed thirty years ago as an annex to the King Edward Hotel. On (Turn to Page 2, Col. 5)

Mining Stocks Add From 40 Cents to $6.50; Widest Gain of Wheat at Chicago Is Over Four Cents; Optimistic Influence Felt in London Market; Gains on Wheat at Winnipeg 3 to 3 1/4 Cents; Roosevelt's Announcement Means U.S. Beginning Aggressive Management of Its Gold Currency

Canadian Press
Toronto, Oct. 23.—Canadian stock markets responded briskly to-day to President Roosevelt's forecast of a United States market for gold, and of higher commodity prices.

Gold shares were the high point on Toronto's Mining Exchange as McIntyre climbed $6.50 to $41, Dome $4.45 to $36, while other gold holdings added from 40 cents to $2 to their listed values. It was one of the sharpest advances in mining exchange history, the high points being held in the early afternoon after a slight lull in forenoon activity. Base metals, also were higher in Toronto and Montreal.

International Nickel added $1.90 at Montreal and $1.75 in Toronto. Smelters climbed 7 and held on the Montreal Exchange, and was up $6 at Toronto.

What traders regarded as a natural reaction to last week's sell-off helped the Roosevelt announcement in boosting industrial stocks. Alcohol stocks joined in the advance and were up one to three points in both cities.

The Canadian dollar strengthened on developments, in comparison with New York funds, climbing to 97 1/2 from the opening quotation of 97 1/4. Bar gold London was up 60 cents an ounce at $30.67 in Canadian funds, on the British valuation of 129 1/2.

London, Oct. 23.—Sir John Simon, secretary for foreign affairs, will not attend sessions of the Disarmament Conference steering committee in Geneva Wednesday and Thursday, it was decided to-day at a cabinet meeting.

Captain Anthony Eden, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, it was decided, will go in Sir John's place.

In order that the directors might gain something definite to work on, copies of the two letters were forwarded to D. B. Plunkett, M.P., pointing out the incongruity, and asking that the real reason for the action be explained.

Mr. Stevens said that equitable staff reductions were considered necessary and Victoria had been treated equally with Nelson and New Westminster. Mr. Stevens said the head offices had been moved to more suitable premises in a building from New Westminster. There had been no removal from Victoria, he said, but it had been necessary.

PLOT TO KILL PRESIDENT

Eight Persons Arrested For Preparing to Slay Benavides of Peru By Bombing

Lima, Peru, Oct. 23.—Government authorities admit assassinating attempt to kill President Oscar Benavides with a bomb.

An official announcement issued yesterday said eight persons had been arrested as authors of the plot, uncovered when they tried to explode the bomb on a highway near Lima. The suspects are to be tried in the regular law courts.

Gen. Oscar Benavides was chosen President of Peru last May, immediately after the assassination of President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, the army colonel who made himself President following the overthrow of President Leguia in 1931.

The Assembly elected Benavides to serve until July 28, 1936, and the Republic was declared in a state of siege as soon as he assumed office.

Deputy Superintendent of Police James McDevitt said he had communicated with Col. Norman Schwarzkopf of the New Jersey state police, and the New Jersey officer had been seeking Gorch for questioning since the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped, March 1, 1932.

Police said Gorch had the facial characteristics attributed to "John" by Dr. Condon, including the high forehead, sharp chin and widely-spaced eyes.

EX-SECRETARY DIES IN THE U.S.

Associated Press
Washington, Oct. 23.—William M.
Doak, Secretary of Labor in the Hoover cabinet and Labor leader, died to-day at his home in nearby Virginia.
Mr. Doak succumbed to heart disease.
He suffered a severe attack about two weeks ago. He was fifty-one years old.
He was the first Secretary of Labor born in the United States. Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania and William B. Wilson his predecessor, both were born in the British Isles.
Starting out as a trainman, he became interested in labor questions and became general chairman of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen on the Norfolk and Western system. In which post he served from 1908 to 1916.
From 1916 until he became Secretary of Labor about three years ago, he was the legislative representative here of the Brotherhood of Railroad Train-men.

Wheat and Stock Prices Stage Rise

gold gave a decided boost to financial markets in the United States to-day.
Wheat in Chicago put registered extraordinary advances of more than four cents, and shares on the New York Stock Exchange advanced $1 to more than $5.
There was no such frenzied flight of dollars into staples and shares, however, as there was when the United States abandoned the gold standard last April, or when the dollar broke severely in terms of other currencies last July.

Comment on the new plan in Wall Street was decidedly mixed, with some orthodox sound-money bankers insisting the step was so novel and untried as to be likely to impair confidence, while other financial experts felt the move was a sound endeavor to bring gold fluctuations under control, and would leave eventually to stabilization.
WHEAT AT CHICAGO
Chicago, Oct. 23.—President Roosevelt's address made wheat prices soar-ing to-day, and reach a point 19 cents above last week's low, bottommost point this season.
An outstanding feature of to-day's trade was the notable scarcity of wheat offerings. Wheat closed strong 3 1/2 to 4 1/2 cents above Saturday's finish, corn and oats both 1 1/2 to 2 cents up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 25 cents.
Wheat futures closed: December 86 1/2 to 86 3/4; May 89 to 89 1/4; July 78.

IN LONDON
London, Oct. 23.—Mainly as a result of President Roosevelt's speech, prices on the London Stock Exchange started the week cheerfully to-day. South African gold mining shares improved, while transatlantic issues developed irregularly. Rubber shares, Argentine rails and German bonds were firmer.
The market closed steady.

U.S. DOLLAR IN BRITAIN
London, Oct. 23.—The United States dollar, the chief centre of activity on the exchange market here, weakened sharply to-day on President Roosevelt's speech, interpreted as indicating a higher gold price.
The dollar depreciated under selling pressure nearly eight cents on the day to close at $4.62 1/2, in relation to the pound sterling after the quotation at one time had gone to $4.62 1/2.
The opening was $4.53 to the pound.
The French franc, at first reflecting more confident views regarding the budget, was firmer at $1.43 to the pound in the early dealings, but subsequently eased appreciably to close at the day's low, $1.38.

PRICE OF GOLD
Washington, Oct. 23.—The United States Treasury's new mined gold price to-day was $29.599 per ounce, 58 cents higher than Saturday's quotation.

DOLLAR CONTROL
Washington, Oct. 23.—Firm control of the United States dollar's gold value to-day was added by President Roosevelt to the government's multiple efforts to lift commodity prices. Means of control was establishment of a government market for newly-mined gold in the United States and the President's decision to buy or sell gold "whenever necessary"—in the world markets.
Mr. Roosevelt announced the step as a definite policy to "establish and maintain continuous control" looking toward a managed currency, in a speech broadcast by radio yesterday evening.
He pledged specifically to set price levels and eventually to fix the value of the dollar.

Reviewing his administration's recovery campaign, Mr. Roosevelt assured the people "we are on our way and we are headed in the right direction."
"When we have restored the price level," said the President, "we shall seek to establish and maintain a dollar which will not change its purchasing and debt-paying power during the succeeding generation."
For the present, he said, it was important to tighten control over the dollar.

PROGRESS OF DRIVE
Mr. Roosevelt discussed generally the aims and achievements of the recovery drive, stressing the farm and NRA administrations as mounting columns in the new "edifice of recovery."
The temple which, when completed, will no longer be a temple of money changes or beggars, but rather a temple dedicated to and maintained for a greater justice, a greater welfare for America—the habitation of a sound economic life.

POLICY: NOT EXPEDIENT
The President explained his new dollar control.
"My aim in taking this step is to establish and maintain continuous control. This is a policy and not an expedient."
"It is not to be used merely to offset a temporary fall in prices. We are thus continuing to move toward a managed currency."
Dealing with the agricultural problem, Mr. Roosevelt said he was satisfied with the improvement in farm prices and would insist on a further increase.
"If we cannot do this one way," he said, "we will do it another. But do it we will."

NEW JOBS
Mr. Roosevelt estimated 4,000,000 people have been given employment since March—or, saying it another way, 40 per cent of those seeking work have found it.
Turning to the NRA, the President said: "In the vast majority of localities the NRA has been given support in unintended measure. We know there are chiselers. At the bottom of every case of criticism and obstruction we have found some selfish interests, some private axe to grind."

CHANGE SINCE SPRING
Some of the highlights of President Roosevelt's review of recovery were:
"In the early spring of this year there were actually and proportionately more people out of work in this country than in any other nation in the world."
Of these, I am convinced 40 per cent of those seeking work have found it."
"Another pillar in the making (of the recovery structure) is the agricultural adjustment administration."
The problem we seek to solve had been steadily getting worse for twenty years, but during the last six months we have made more rapid progress than any nation has ever made in a like period of time.

FARM PRICES
It is true that in July farm commodity prices had been pushed up higher than they are to-day, but that push came in part from pure speculation by people who could not tell the difference between wheat and rye—people who have no real interest in the farmer and his problems.
"Because of conditions in this country and because of events beyond our control in other parts of the world, it becomes increasingly important to develop and apply the further measures which may be necessary from time to time to control the gold value of our dollar at home."

Government credit will be maintained and a sound currency will accompany a rise in the American commodity price level.
The President's allusion to "sound" money was taken in many quarters as another indication of the administration's aversion to direct inflation, such as the issuance of greenbacks, or an arbitrary reduction in the gold content of the dollar.

In his speech Mr. Roosevelt put operation of the government market for newly mined gold under the administration of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. "Whenever necessary to the end in view," he disclosed, "we shall also buy or sell gold in the world market."

Canadian Press and Associated Press dispatches to The Times to-day showed the announcement of President Roosevelt the United States would go into the market for purchase of gold was interpreted in some foreign capitals as an indication the United States had decided on stabilization on a sound money basis.

League of Nations circles viewed it as a move toward a stabilized currency, some of them commenting a rise in prices would make payment of fixed charges easier.
Paris observers saw a virtual stabilization in the plan, one of them describing it as a rejection of inflation with "an inflationary bubble broken."
The Evening Standard in London was sympathetic, saying "a currency kept stable in the terms of commodities by continuous government action will be something new in the history of economies."

The newspaper stressed the belief a stable dollar would create a big money market in the United States.

FOR REMOVAL

sary to transfer J. P. Forde to the mainland since he had been appointed chief of staff and naturally should be located at head offices.
The change had been made after appeals for economy, said Mr. Stewart in his communication, and it had been decided to consolidate all the offices in Vancouver, the logical place. He pointed out that the change of offices had no effect on the operation of the Equimal drydock since it was supervised with practically no intervention from the federal government's standpoint.
Hon. Alfred Durand, Minister of Marine, also expressed the same views as the Minister of Public Works.

PLUNKETT AGAINST CHANGE
A letter from Mr. Plunkett stated he had presented the chamber's protests and recommendations to the minister.
"I have also, during the last two years, presented the claims of Victoria, in other departments of the Dominion service," he continues, "and have consistently advocated the retention of all Dominion government offices in Victoria. This has been done persistently in view of the fact that mainland members of Parliament, mainland public bodies and other interested parties endeavored to have such offices transferred. I have no reason to think, or believe, that any further change in the office is contemplated, but should I have any inference or suggestion which might anticipate such a movement, you may be assured I shall communicate with your association at the earliest opportunity and I am assured that I will have the support of all public bodies and service clubs in Victoria for the retention of the present Dominion departmental services located in our city."

When the matter was brought to Mr.
Plunkett's attention some weeks ago, he declared he was satisfied with the federal move and felt the reasons given were justifiable.

M. Daladier told the Radical So-adding that "foreigners already were speculating against the franc."

The vote test was set for to-night on a proposed reduction in the pay of functionaries.

January 23, 1929, Mr. Maynard, seeking to retain his street-level business location, decided to purchase the whole property for $45,000. After making his first payment of $15,250, Mr. O'Halloran said that Mr. Maynard discovered that the building did not have a western wall, but was built on a level of 100 feet above the street level. The building was on the eastern wall of the building on the adjoining lot, which is the King Edward Hotel Building.

That was had enough to have a rectangular building with only three walls, and negotiations were entered into with the vendors, Mr. O'Halloran said. But worse was to come when on June 9, this year, Mr. Maynard discovered he had no eastern wall to his building, as the wall was situated upon the adjoining lot owned by the Weng-

a section of the platform emphasized by the speaker.
Dr. Weir drew attention to the Liberal pledge to strive for state health insurance with the object not only of preserving health but to reduce the cost of sickness to the individual and to industry.

The Liberal objectives to keep current expenditures within current revenue to maintain the credit of the province and reduce capital charges were also reviewed.
Alex. McDonald, candidate for the Quint Islands, gave a short but forceful talk. He pointed out he was a resident of the district with a knowledge of and personal interest in the needs of the district. If elected as a Liberal he believed he would be a member of a responsible party with a clear-cut policy for the good of British Columbia. The Liberal platform had been drawn up at a representative meeting where views representative of all the people and every section of the province. In addition the party had a leader in whom its members had every confidence.

When she was in the Times office on Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Bryden saw a sketch of the serpent which appeared in the afternoon edition.
"Its back looked just like that," she said, "and those bumps looked much like a fan." Cadorosaurus stuck its head about fifteen feet out of water while they were looking at it.

HAD SEVERAL BUMPS
"I was rowing back home after fishing off Trial Island and was heading towards Oak Bay, when I heard a great commotion in the water to my right and between the boat and the shore," said Mr. Bryden, relating what he saw.
"My wife, who was sitting in the stern of the boat looking ahead, suddenly shouted 'Goodness, Bert, what is that?'
I looked over my right shoulder and distinctly saw two curved sections of the monster, which was spouting water with a gushing sound. The two humps

I saw were separated by several feet of water. As I looked the monster, which appeared to be of a dark green color, disappeared beneath the surface. I was so near it that I had to stop rowing to avoid colliding with it.
My first reaction was that the monster we had seen was a whale but on further reflection and on hearing the stories about the sea serpent I concluded that it could not have been a whale.

"I have been fishing off here for many years and I have been among porpoise and seals but never have I seen anything that resembled or sounded like the object sighted on this occasion."

Mr. Bryden has been valet at the Empress Hotel ever since it was opened.
An interesting communication was received to-day by F. W. Kemp, who first saw "Caddy" in 1932, from E.
Goodland.

"I have been following with interest the stories of the sea serpent," writes Mr. Goodland. "May I say that I have been acquainted with the deep sea for over sixty years and in my early days had the privilege of meeting many old seamen who had seen sea monsters similar to the one described by you. I have seen many copper celts taken off the coast of Devon and Cornwall, and also off the Isle of Wight, where I lived for twenty years."

"From the information I have received, these creatures are very shy and disappear very quickly; after they find they are under observation. May I suggest that this one was driven out of its usual location either by rough sea or by an earthquake under the sea. In the old days of sailing ships, observation was not as difficult as the motion of the ship was much slower. But here let me say the description I had of sea serpents tallies exactly with that given by you."

MAKING A SEARCH
Over the week-end, The Times sent out a party among the islands off Cadboro Bay to investigate several leads. Certain information was gained and further developments are expected within the next few days. It has been suggested that a search be made by airplane and this is also being considered.

BURGLARS BUSY
IN VANCOUVERWeek-end is marked by Petty Robberies and Housebreakings

Vancouver, Oct. 23.—Men's apparel to the value of $400 was taken by shop-breakers from the B.C. Clothing Company, 42 West Hastings Street. The thieves broke through a skylight and slid down a rope into the store, then removed the goods through a rear door.

A stock of cigarettes, valued at $300, and $18 in cash, were carried off by store thieves from the Windsor Grocery, 1002 East Twelfth Avenue.

Safecrackers failed in an attempt to loot the strongbox in the office of J. Eades Ward, realtor, 324 West Pender Street. The robbers knocked the combination dial off the safe but were unable to force back the lock tumblers.

Stationery samples, clothing and personal effects, valued at $400, were stolen from the automobile of R. V. Reid, Santa Monica, Cal., which was parked at Hawkes Avenue and Hastings Street, Saturday evening.

LOSER CASH
Miss G. M. Horner, 776 West Seventh Avenue, reported to the police her pocket was picked of a purse containing $2 and a cheque for the same amount in a downtown theatre Saturday afternoon. Later Detectives W. Briggman and J. Hendrick arrested a young woman of no fixed address, and charged her with the theft. The purse, without the money or cash, was recovered by the officers.

Pickpockets robbed F. H. Clark, Portland, Ore., of $170, and G. E. Hawker, 227 West Twenty-second of $10, Mrs. E. Maddock, 3149 Main Street, reported the theft of a ring valued at $150, Saturday night from the Crystal Pool, Beach Avenue.

BURGLAR FILES
Police answered a call at 11:30 p.m. Saturday to the home of D. Glendenning, 3253 Victoria Drive, where Miss Jean Glendenning had found a prowler in the basement. The intruder fled on being discovered and drove away in a waiting automobile.

At 1:40 a.m. Saturday a prowler attempted to enter the home of W. A. Freese, 1012 Haro Street, by a ladder reaching a window on the second floor. He clambered down the ladder when he was discovered by Mr. and Mrs. Freese, and was joined on the ground by a second man. Both escaped in separate automobiles.

Thieves entered La Salle Bowling Alley, 945 Granville Street, and forced open a number of vending machines from which they obtained $15 and also stole a stock of cigarettes from the tobacco counter.

A room prowler robbed Mrs. S. O. Braun, 884 Bute Street, of a number of pieces of jewelry.

ROBBERY OF $170
Two armed bandits held up Bertram Brown, meat dealer, at the rear of his home at 1728 East Second Avenue shortly before midnight Saturday and robbed him of $170.

Mr. Brown was putting his car in the garage when the men appeared. One covered him with a revolver while the other shone the rays from a powerful flashlight in his eyes. He was compelled to hand over his money, which he carried in his overcoat pocket. The money was made up of collections from four butcher shops, which Mr. Brown operates.

MEAT MARKET ROBBED
Yesterday evening or early this morning the strongbox of the Dominion Meat Market, West Fourth Avenue, was broken open and looted of nearly $500, of which about half was cash. The combination dial was broken off and the lock tumblers manipulated to open the door. A number of private papers, such as insurance policies, were taken.

From the premises of the B.C. Brush Works Ltd., safecrackers escaped with $40 yesterday evening or this morning. They broke into a vault equipped with a safe door.

MEN SENT TO CAMPS
Nelson, B.C., Oct. 23 (Canadian Press).—About 200 single unemployed men who arrived in Nelson Saturday afternoon from northern Alberta were in various relief camps in this district today.

NRA and Effects On Canada Are SurveyedProf. W. A. Carrothers of University of B.C. Addresses Audience of 1,000
at Point Grey

Special to The Times
University of B.C., Point Grey, Oct. 23.—Canada was naturally influenced by any major movement in the United States. Next to Ogopogo, "Caddy" and the B.C. election, the National Recovery Act was about fourth in newspaper interest and in all probability the NRA was a little ahead of that, said Professor W. A. Carrothers of the department of economics of the University of British Columbia in addressing the Vancouver Institute Saturday evening on "The NRA—An American Experiment." A thousand people crowded into the University Auditorium to hear the speaker.

Dr. Carrothers' discussion of the question why there was not something like the NRA followed in addressing the Vancouver Institute Saturday evening on "The NRA—An American Experiment." A thousand people crowded into the University Auditorium to hear the speaker.

PANEL READJUSTMENTS
The building up of anything like a self-sufficient economic policy in Canada, as was the case under the NRA in the United States, would be extremely difficult and would involve serious risks, in the opinion of the speaker.

Canada was fifth in foreign trade, and while, for a country of 10,000,000 people, this would ordinarily be a matter of pride, it was the greatest source of economic weakness at a time of international breakdown. Self-sufficiency would involve major adjustments, some of a very painful nature. Particularly would this be so in the case of prairie people, many of whom would be unable to make a living because of the effect of economic nationalism on wheat exports.

Secondly, Canada was a debtor country. It was also young and the future development of its great resources would require much foreign capital. Economic nationalism would compel Canada to default on its debt and, while there were a number of people who would take such a step lightly and argue the human body should be placed before interest on money, there was more to such a course than that. A great deal depended on the manner of defaulting. Canada would not be justified in cold bloodedly embarking on such a policy.

WHEAT ACREAGE REDUCTION
said some of the United States policies might well be good if applied to Canada. The present Dominion wheat quota was somewhat akin to the United States step. It was true there was no acreage reduction north of the line as yet, but Dr. Carrothers considered it was practically certain there would have to be such reduction of a temporary nature in Canada.

Secondly, something could be done in Canada with respect to the instruments of corporation finance which had been used to exploit the public. Up to now, such exploitation had been carried on entirely legally. Measures such as making unlawful the issuance of stock of greater face value than the real assets of the concern were in order.

FINANCE CONTROL
Thirdly, finance could be controlled. The speaker emphasized he was not thinking so much of the commercial banks as of the more serious situation in high finance. Interlocking directorates were one of the worst of features and should be prohibited. It was not so much the Canadian system of doing business that was bad, but the way in which the exploiters had operated the system. There could be reform without the abolition of the things that were good. There should be no policy of control that interfered with the spiritual and personal freedom of the individual. Politicians should come to realize their responsibilities.

TWO ALTERNATIVES
The NRA Dr. Carrothers saw as one of two ways to meet the forces of depression and maladjustment. It was the way of centralized governmental control. The alternative, which he saw as the only way, was the exception of France had adopted, was to allow as much free play as possible to the forces of the market. This meant a policy of deflation with its corollary of human distress.

Six "plans" of the NRA were enumerated: Control of competition mainly through the NRA itself and the various codes; control of production, applied chiefly to so far to wheat, cotton and other agricultural products; adjustment and control of the price spread which made comfortable economic life impossible; control of the price level, one of the most definite aims; control of wages and artificial circulation of consumer purchasing power; temporary artificial reduction of existing surpluses.

SELF-SUFFICIENCY
To carry out the NRA, it was necessary for the United States to adopt an ideal of economic self-sufficiency. There was probably no other country in the world where the ideal had better chance of attainment. The speaker said he did not mean to imply it was possible; later he added he considered the carrying out of the NRA along the line of self-sufficiency was a bad thing and failure would be better than success for the world at large. In the long run, for the United States also. But the policy, so far as it went, had the benefit of being applied in a country with rich natural resources and the material capital, and it explained President Roosevelt's attitude to the World Economic Conference. In view of the internal situation of the United States at the time, Dr. Carrothers believed it would have been wise to have indefinitely postponed the conference until this situation had cleared.

Dr. Carrothers read from the NRA and the material capital, and it explained President Roosevelt's attitude to the World Economic Conference. In view of the internal situation of the United States at the time, Dr. Carrothers believed it would have been wise to have indefinitely postponed the conference until this situation had cleared.

REAL TEST CASES
In addition, there had been certain noteworthy by-products. One was the bringing into the limelight of the fight between Roosevelt and the big financial and business interests, which promised to be one of the most important features of the New Deal.

When President Roosevelt threw out his challenge to these interests in his inaugural address, the tide of popular support behind him had caused the enemy to retreat in hiding. But there had been a change within the last month. Financial papers such as Barro's and big business men were openly coming out in opposition to the NRA. There had been a difference in the tone of newspaper articles, formerly all most unanimously favorable to the President. It would appear Mr. Roosevelt was not at the beginning of his real fight, the speaker added.

Dr. Carrothers went on to name certain fundamental difficulties. In the first place, the need for quick action, the feeling "we are going somewhere, we may not know where, but we are moving" had been a weak part of the undertaking.

Secondly, complete success of the NRA had depended on a rapid return to prosperity. The plan was to have 6,000,000 of the 15,000,000 jobs back to work by now, not something over 1,000,000. Mr. Roosevelt had been hoping for making real adjustments with the least amount of hurt.

THE FUTURE
In dealing with the future, Prof. Carrothers said he wished he were a fortune teller or a Roger Bacon, perhaps he could then make a fortune. In the first place, the NRA might succeed, but success along a line of self-sufficiency was a questionable success. Secondly, the growing opposition to the NRA might succeed, though this was not a strong probability, but the realization of it could drive the United States back to a policy of internationalism. Thirdly, it might be necessary for Mr. Roosevelt to exercise an even greater control, since control tended to breed further control. Fourthly, the NRA might die a sort of natural death. Fifthly there might be recovery in spite of the NRA, an outcome which Sir William Layton, noted British economist, saw a likelihood in spite of the square-headedness of the United States government, the swayed-headedness of the German government and the flat-headedness of the British government.

In conclusion, Prof. Carrothers made a sincere plea for the rebuilding and

IS FOUND IN GAS-FILLED ROOM

MRS. GUS WINKLER

Chicago, Oct. 23.—Was the widow of Gus Winkler marked for an underworld death?

This question was brought up today by Colonel Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago Crime Commission, as a result of the finding of the thirty-seven-year-old widow, Georgette, unconscious in her apartment yesterday evening with burners of a gas stove turned on.

"It is not too fantastic to believe her suicide attempt was the result of gangland intimidations," Col. Chamberlin said. He pointed out she was found on the eve of the reopening of the property of the masses and with great difficulty had placed on the statute books of the province social legislation which will live long after the members of that government have been forgotten.

"Do not believe for one moment," added Mr. Pattullo, "that these measures of social legislation were put through without a good deal of opposition having to be overcome."

Mr. Pattullo denied the implication contained in criticism of the Liberal Party as a machine. The Liberal Party, he explained, was but a means to an end, and no implication of machine tactics could be applied to it. There was no mystery about the Liberal Party. It was just a banding together of men and women interested in furthering the interests of the people.

CONFESSES FAILURE
The Tolmie administration had a three-to-one majority in the House and could put through whatever measures they wished.

"The only reason they wished me to join them," said Mr. Pattullo, "was so that they could saddle me with some of the blame for their misgovernment, and have us assume some of the responsibility for increased taxation. Mr. Davie, one of Mr. Ramsay's opponents, on the non-partisan ticket, was a self-confessed failure in that he stated in a written statement to the press, that he was leaving the Tolmie administration because he had not been able to implement, in his five years in office, any of the five planks in his election platform."

Turning to financial matters, Mr. Pattullo said: "Interest rates are too high, and at a time when wages are lowest, but it is clear that we cannot repudiate our debts but a conversion loan will have to be put Duncan, Oct. 23.—A large and attentive audience gave a cordial reception to T. D. Pattullo, Liberal leader, and David Ramsay, Liberal candidate for Cowichan-Newcastle coming election at a meeting in the Agricultural Hall here Friday evening.

Electors from all parts of the riding were present, some having driven many miles to attend.

"Mr. Ramsay," said Mr. Pattullo, "is fighting for the cause of good government. He represents not only the Liberal Party but the Liberal policy of good government, which is a policy impregnated with Liberal thought and broad in its conception."

"To-day we have representative government, which is government of the people, for the people, by the people through elected representatives and these representatives should not keep themselves aloof, but should be in touch, constantly, with their constituents and be the servants of the people."

SOCIAL LEGISLATION
To maintain representative government, we must necessarily have party government and party government can only be replaced by a dictatorship or a social state maintained by force. In the prosperous days of a few years ago we were prone to overlook those who were in financial difficulties but the Liberal Government did not forget the few who suffered in the midst of the prosperity of the masses and with great difficulty had placed on the statute books of the province social legislation which will live long after the members of that government have been forgotten.

Mr. Davie, one of Mr. Ramsay's opponents, on the non-partisan ticket, was a self-confessed failure in that he stated in a written statement to the press, that he was leaving the Tolmie administration because he had not been able to implement, in his five years in office, any of the five planks in his election platform."

Turning to financial matters, Mr. Pattullo said: "Interest rates are too high, and at a time when wages are lowest, but it is clear that we cannot repudiate our debts but a conversion loan will have to be put through to relieve the country of this huge burden of interest payments.

"If the Dominion government can lend money to the C.P.R. without interest why cannot it do the same for the provinces? Cannot we establish a sinking fund for money lent without interest as well as lent with interest? The $35,000,000 recently advanced to the banks to create $350,000,000 of credit was simply a form of inflation and there is no reason why our credit cannot be used to put our people to work."

TO KEEP PEOPLE EMPLOYED
"There is no reason why public works cannot be initiated to keep our people employed till times pick up."

Mr. Hugh Savage, one of the local independents running in this district, has stated that machine politics have been used in the appointment of Mr. David Ramsay as Liberal candidate in this district. Well, all I can say is this, that it ill behoves any one who lays such a claim to purity as Mr. Savage does to impute unpure methods to someone else. I take the responsibility for Mr. Ramsay running in this district as no local man could be found who was willing to run and who wanted a man here so that we could show a united front against the C.C.F. throughout the province."

MR. RAMSAY
Mr. David Ramsay, who preceded Mr. Pattullo on the platform, said in opening his address that he refused to accept the term outsider as applied to himself. "I am a neighbor, a fellow citizen of Vancouver Island, and one with you in the federal district of Vancouver and albatrosses to me as an outsider are absolutely unfounded."

"In this election," continued Mr. Ramsay, "there is a multiplicity of candidates embarked on a journey, as it were, on three different ships, the independent ship without chart or captain, the socialistic ship without captain and setting out to sail in uncharted seas, and the Liberal ship with its course clearly plotted and an able captain in command."

"Mr. Hugh Savage I respect as a successful man in his own business, but as an independent in the House Mr. Savage will serve no useful purpose. I believe in party government. Independent criticism but are not in a position to do anything constructive. The independence to maintain his independence in the eyes of the electorate must keep on objecting whether he wants to or not.

STABILITY
"The Liberal policy offers stability and good government under an able leader, T. D. Pattullo. The Liberal Party is the great bulwark against the excesses of the C.C.F. and is worthy of the support of all who are interested in good government."

Quoting from the late Lord Grey of Falloden who said: "Liberalism is the great need of the world to-day," Mr. Ramsay closed his address by stating that if elected he would make a point of visiting every part of the constituency before the next session of the House to get a further, first-hand acquaintance with the needs of the constituents.

V. J. PATEL IS CALLED BY DEATH

Geneva, Oct. 23.—Vithal Bhal J. Patel, former president of the Indian Legislative Assembly and an intimate friend of M. K. Gandhi, died Sunday in a hospital at Gandhinagar, where he was sixty years old.

Former Mayor Bose of Calcutta was at the bedside.

Mr. Patel requested his body be buried in India.

"I give my blessing to all my countrymen and all my friends in India and all over the world," he said just before he died.

"Before I die, I pray for the early attainment of India's freedom."

British Audiences Also Barred

Berlin on Germany and Disarmament

Canadian Press
New York, Oct. 23.—A London cable to The New York Times says a talkie interview with H. Hon. David Lloyd George on the international situation, released through British Movietone News, was ordered cut from newsreels of 3,000 motion picture theatres on the Gaumont British circuit Saturday. An interview with Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi propagandist, by a London Daily Mail correspondent, was similarly withdrawn.

The newsreel showed the scene at Geneva when Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, president of the Disarmament Conference, read the announcement of Germany's withdrawal. This was followed by the interview with Mr. Lloyd George in which he expressed the view that other signatories of the Treaty of Versailles had broken faith with Germany by not disarming.

Trade Agreement

Wellington, N.Z., Oct. 23.—Prime Minister G. W. Forbes announced today the Canada-New Zealand trade agreement would be extended six months from November 24 on terms identical with those in force now.

He said it was probable New Zealand's trade relations with Canada would be improved as efforts to that end were receiving encouragement from the Canadian Government.

LIBERALISM VERSUS CONFUSION

Only eight more days are left for active campaigning in British Columbia's unique general election. By this time it may be supposed that most people have made up their minds how they are going to vote on November 2. If there are any who have not reached a definite decision our advice would be to study the list of candidates very carefully and then remember that there is only one united party with a definite policy and a resolute and courageous leader who knows where he is going.

There are twenty-nine candidates running in Victoria and Oak Bay, four in Esquimalt and four in Saanich. Four are to be elected in Victoria and Oak Bay and one in each of the other two constituencies—thirty-seven bidders for six seats. The choice for stable and orderly government obviously should be as follows:

VICTORIA: CLEARHUE
HART
JOHNSON
KINSMAN
ESQUIMALT: WHITNEY-GRIFFITHS
SAANICH: WHITTAKER

The six candidates we have named are pledged to carry out the policies which Mr. Pattullo has laid down as his programme for the correction of the disabilities with which the province is afflicted.

The platform of the Liberal party which Mr. Pattullo leads recognizes that profitable and permanent employment is the most important question facing our people, and it advocates all-round co-operation and the necessary credit so that a broad programme of constructive and useful wage-distributing public enterprise may be carried out. Associated with this part of the Liberal programme is an undertaking to establish an economic council, fully representative of all interests, to act in an advisory capacity to the government. Such a body would study industrial and social effort in the province and suggest means to correlate these efforts. It would familiarize itself with the various aspects of trade, internal and external, with a view to national co-operation.

The party led by Mr. Pattullo is in favor of national unemployment insurance on a contributory basis. It demands a complete revision of the taxation structure with a view to reduction wherever possible, including exemption in the lower scale of wages and salaries. Since the health of the individual is of first importance to the welfare of the whole community, the Liberal programme includes a measure of state health insurance, not only to preserve health, but to reduce costs both to the average citizen and to industry.

Every municipal taxpayer will be especially interested in that plank of Mr. Pattullo's platform which pledges his party to an adjustment of the financial position of the municipalities as between them and the province. It is of paramount importance, the Liberal candidates quite properly argue, that the municipalities be put in a sound financial position.

Not the least important proposal in the Pattullo platform is that pledging the establishment of a highway commission which would be responsible for a continuous policy of road construction and road maintenance. When the Tolmie government came in, for instance, it completely changed a road policy which had been eminently satisfactory and economical. It purchased $3,000,000 worth of road machinery on the Department of Public Works account alone—and the greater part of this valuable equipment is deteriorating through lack of use. A highway board would put an end to such needless waste of public money.

A public utilities commission would be established by a government led by Mr. Pattullo. The need for such a body will grow as the natural resources of the province are developed. In these developments due regard must be paid for the interests of the public at large as well as for those who do the development. An impartial tribunal, such as the commission proposed by the Liberal party, would be able to hold the balance evenly.

All the social services, of course, would be maintained for the reason that they were put on the statute books by the Liberal government which held office between 1916 and 1928. One of the most important pieces of legislation was the Mothers' Pension Act, the act which has preserved the home from which the breadwinner had been removed by death or other causes. The monthly cheque has been a godsend to thousands of mothers and fatherless children.

We have referred to some of the policies for which Mr. Pattullo and his forty-six candidates stand. The Times feels sure they will appeal to every liberal-minded person as sound policies. They can be realized in fact, however, only if the people vote on November 2 for a party which is able to give sane and orderly government. It is to Greater Victoria's interest, therefore, to elect the six candidates we have named. The alternative to a Pattullo government is confusion in government.

ENCOURAGING SIGNS

Latest news from London announces the fact that there are 722,410 more persons at work in Great Britain at the present time than there were a year ago. This does not mean, of course, that the total number of unemployed has been reduced by this figure because youths leaving school and unable to find jobs have to be taken into consideration. The official statement says, however, that the aggregate is lower than a year ago by 521,284.

In support of the brighter picture of economic conditions which the figures have quoted portray we are told that of the 102 groups of trades in the Ministry of Labor's tables only fifteen of them failed to show improvement, and these were the trades sensitive to seasonal fluctuations. General engineering and the textile industry were responsible for the greatest increase in employment. The perplexing problem of what to do with the youth leaving school is the fly in Britain's economic ointment. The number to be taken care of this year is greater by 25,000 than last year—due to the heavy birth rate in 1919 and 1920. In an effort to devise some means of continued education, representatives of industry, commerce, religion and social welfare are working on the matter. Their objective is to provide unemployed youth with an opportunity to put to profitable use their enforced leisure and so prepare themselves to take better advantage of improved labor conditions.

In spite of obvious difficulties in the way of more rapid recovery from her unemployment condition, it is plain that Great Britain is on the way back to better times. When Mr. J. P. Morgan reached New York from London last Saturday he said the British heavy industries were showing improvement and the feeling over there was that things were better and improving all the time.

Canada is interested in improvement in conditions everywhere, whether it be in the country on the south of us, or in countries from which she is separated by the oceans. Modern science has so contracted the world that as one part of it recovers its economic equilibrium, so must the beneficial effect of that recovery make itself felt to a greater or lesser degree everywhere. Canada is more directly concerned in the economic rehabilitation of the United States perhaps than any other country, as the United States is interested in Canada's return to normal times—since the fact that a business which used to be done between the Dominion and the republic worth nearly $1,400,000,000 has dropped to less than $355,000,000 is a striking commentary on the tariff mania.

From the various parts of the world, however, come reports of a more cheerful outlook. The numerous trade agreements which either are in process of negotiation or have been completed are helping to whittle down tariff barriers to some extent, although economic nationalism still remains the vicious malady from which the world's business is suffering.

WHAT'S IN A NAME

Obviously, it is not within the province of The Times to attempt to dictate to anybody in respect of the name he, she or it desires to give to Victoria's sea serpent, but we suggest to The Colonist, with the utmost good-will that "Amy" is scarcely appropriate. In the first place the weight of evidence, based upon the narratives of those who have seen the serpent, supports the theory that the thing is a male. It has a mane, for one thing, and mammals with manes are invariably males. According to some descriptions it also has whiskers—not the few wiry spikes of the feline species—but a luxuriant growth much like that which used to adorn the countenances of our early settlers.

Incidentally, it should be borne in mind that Cadborosaurus is a pioneer of pioneers, being probably many thousands of years of age. We agree that its habit of rearing its head out of the water and looking around—to see and hear what is going on—might reflect well-known characteristics of the female, but this activity might be due to something more than curiosity, and while the fact that it has exposed itself only to male humans might reflect another characteristic of the female, this tendency might be due to something more than curiosity or a primitive instinct for mild flirtation. Besides, it is a noisy, almost tempestuous, beast, or reptile, as the case may be; it nearly frightened one observer out of his wits, and that proclivity suggests a liking for rough practical joking that positively is not feminine.

In any case, may we invite the consideration of The Colonist to the point that if it is convinced that the sea serpent is a female a name such as Semiramis, or Deborah, or Boadicea, would be more fitting. The name Amy is too closely associated with the domestic virtues to apply to a hard-boiled old rounder of the deep who entered this world ages before the American continent came into existence, who is older even than some of the jokes told by our after-dinner orators.

There is a rather alarming suspicion that California's booster's league will try to draw Cadborosaurus southward for the winter tourist season. This should be resisted by Victoria at all costs. It is true officers of H.M.S. Daedalus saw a strange monster in the Gulf of California many years ago, but this appears to have been identified as a giant squid. Ours is not a squid. It is a real sea serpent with all the historic, traditional and scientific trimmings. And it belongs here, for notwithstanding its forbidding appearance, according to all accounts the expression of its countenance indicates that it is perfectly at home in the vicinity of Chatham Island. It lacks completely that haunting, worried look to be found on those who are a long way from their homes and are always expecting bad news of the stock markets. It does not appear to have a care in the world. In this it is decidedly and distinctively Victorian, contented in its release from the fuss and worry of active sea-serpentine and satisfied to beguile the final cons of its life in dignified retirement. It is just possible that if there are any others of its species in the seven seas it may induce them to settle down here in the same way. We therefore should treat it with respect and courtesy. Our Publicity Bureau could exploit Victoria as a home for retired sea serpents very effectively.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

GERMANY ISOLATES HERSELF
The Baltimore Sun

Already the Hitler attitude has resulted in a rapprochement between Russia and France and between Russia and Poland. The old alignments are being restored as a measure of precaution in the face of new threats from Berlin. The air of European diplomacy is thick with suspicion and with resentment and new prophecies of war are heard. And already a great many observers profess to believe that the new situation calls for a firm policy on the part of England and France.

A THOUGHT

It is not designed that the road should be made too smooth for us here upon earth.—Jane Porter.

Loose Ends

At Jasper the tourists gaze—the hoboes scamper into the bush as we approach—for you have to be careful these days—Thompson's monument is honored by new names from Chicago, Waltham and Toronto—and the dishonored totem looks down, farish with Babylonian splendor.

By H. B. W.

FLOTSAM

AT JASPER I fell in within a policeman and went for a walk with me. I mean I went with him voluntarily and not, as you might imagine, because I had to. And as we walked up the railway tracks half a hundred ragged men, hoboes of some freight train, sighting the police uniform, scampered into the woods, poor devils. There you had the depression in acute form, the wave of landless men sweeping from the prairies before the snow to seek refuge on the milder Coast, the great seasonal migration, the flotsam and jetsam of these depressing times.

We stopped to talk to two of them, who didn't scamper. They were camping out on the rough gravel soil and it was freezing cold. "We was chasin' a freight train that come through here last night," said one of them, who was as black with locomotive smoke and dust from the railroad as any negro. "But we stumbled on a rock and missed it. We got down to Kamloops, in about two days, but a good guy come along and bought us a whole lot of grub at a grocery store. He showed us a little shanty that some fellows had built up the road there and wanted us to camp it, but you can't do that. You can't take a chance on camping in any place somebody else has built. Because," said this grimy fellow in his ragged clothes, "some of these here hoboes is terribly lousy."

The depression has made thousands like that, just roaming up and down the country, youngsters mostly who have never worked and will never work who will roam up and down, many of them, until they die.

WILD WEST

AND HERE they were in Jasper, the prize product of bull market prosperity, the place where thousands swarmed from the great cities of the world and wear riding breeches and play golf on the million-dollar golf course in the heart of the mountains and imagine that they are living the rugged life of the Wild West. Here, where you would least expect to find it, in this mighty cup among the snow-capped Rockies, you see the ultimate extremes of our civilization. And out in the product of the other.

A place like Jasper, I suppose, is necessary in our scheme of things, a place where soft-civilized creatures can at least get a glimpse of the wilderness, if it is only from Sir Henry Thornton's superb golf course. But this is no reason why one should like it. To us Jasper looked like a kind of even-growing one of the side of the eternal hills, which don't seem to enjoy it very much. The perfect picture of civilization trying to pretend that it is barbaric and close to nature is a mighty Indian totem pole standing at Jasper in the midst of a little city of handsome stone houses and park administrative buildings, a poor alien thing dragged here from some reservation where it was carved reverently by a native artist and decked with the images of his gods, dragged here and stuck up to thrill the tourists and painted in garish colors like Jezebel, like an immoral lady of Babylon.

HIGH HONOR

BUT REAL men have come down this mighty pass from the prairies into British Columbia. . . . Thompson who went from here to the Columbia Valley and south and, in modern times, the builders of the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific railways. With the thoroughgoing and elaborate way they have of doing everything at Jasper, they have erected a mighty cairn to Thompson, a bluff above a green river and here again you get the perfect picture of safe and civilized men who go into the wilderness only to pollute it. For upon the bronze tablet which recites the great overland journey of Thompson, beside the man's very name in bronze letters, the tourists have scratched their own dishonoring names. . . . Mary Schmidt, of Chicago, Ill.; Harry Owen, of Waltham, Mass.; Mary Gale, of Toronto, Ont. They have all followed on the pioneer footsteps of the great Thompson, who would be flattered indeed if he could see how they honor him.

Not far off we walked almost head-on into two deer, big white-tailed fellows half as big again as our island species, and utterly fearless. They let us come within six feet of them. Man is their friend in the park and, misguided creatures, they have come to trust him. Men will protect them from all harm, feed them, if necessary, in the winter, so that they lack nothing. Down the road a piece, fifty boys, homeless, penniless and hungry, are waiting to jump a freight.

FROZEN

NOW we are going west through the frozen northland. It is frozen, too, with ice on every little lake, and the first snow on the ground. But it doesn't get cold here, so the fellow at Jasper said—"only ten or twenty or thirty at the most."

"Ten or twenty or thirty what?" I said. "Ten or twenty or thirty below zero," he said. "Of course, that ain't really cold."

But you ought to be up here to appreciate the autumn in Victoria. You ought to see the grim look of that region of jack pine and rocks and mountains. You ought to see the little settlers' shacks miles from anywhere and the way the women stand at the door and wait for the train to go by. It would make you glad to be in Victoria even in the throes of the election, with twenty-nine candidates and a sea serpent.

Yet it is a solemn thought that we have travelled all day from the Alberta boundary, and we are not yet half way across our province to the sea; and there is a vast British Columbia region of us, without people, than in all the inhabited region from here down to the United States boundary—room for millions up there, and some day it will be filled with millions, for if we don't fill it ourselves, somebody else will. Such a vacuum cannot permanently survive in a hungry, over-crowded world.

But what a waste of useless land there is here, too, endless leagues of quiet jack pine and boulders and behind them the white peaks of the high Rockies, useless except to look upon and realize the futility of all human ambition, unless enough to sell to tourists again and again year after year that they may go home and tell their friends in Chicago, Waltham and Toronto that they have tasted the Wild West. Robson and those other peaks, looking down on the valley craning their necks to get many a quiet laugh out of life.

NELSON

To the Editor:—Patriotic societies should beware of sabotage. It's quite in line with the anti-Anglo-Saxon propaganda that is going on, that Nelson's famous signal—should be rendered ridiculous.

Major Longstaffe quotes, quite innocently, one may be sure, in his article on "The Battle of Trafalgar," the "most recent good authority" (not named as saying that "Nelson's message was to amuse the fleet.")

This highly amusing message was that "Nelson confides that every man will do his duty."

The word "confides" used in the above sense, is a cheap American colloquialism of the present day.

According to this "most recent good authority," "Nelson's efforts to amuse the British fleet fell flat, for his message had to be altered, some of its words not being in the naval signal book."

Would Nelson not be conversant with naval signals?

Mr. Hinchliffe's debunking of Nelson's famous message is infinitely more subtle. One would have to write many pages in order to do it justice.

What price "Internationalism" then? GLADYS SHERMAN, PH.D.

1578 Olive Drive, Oak Bay.

IN SOOKE

To the Editor:—Could you give me a little space in your paper as I would like to bring before Hon. Mr. Hinchliffe the statement he made on the Sooke platform as a public meeting on October 18, 1933. He referred to the time when Premier Tolmie asked him to take over the Department of Lands. He was obviously very hostile to Premier Tolmie and told him he did not know where to start as he had never seen such a muddle in all his life as the Department of Lands was in. Right off he begins to rave the Liberal Government for condition the Lands Department was in. It is evident slipped the Sooke platform as a public meeting. The Liberal Government had been out of office five years and that for the last five years we have had a Conservative Minister of Lands.

I would like to know what the Conservative Minister of Lands has been doing this last five years and how it was he did not put his house in order before resigning. I would like to state that the voters of British Columbia would be much obliged to the Hon. Mr. Pooley if he could entertain his audience in a more dignified way, with political mud-slinging and to refrain from insulting the very people who put him in office when he referred to the men who work on the road as receiving charity.

Hon. Mr. Pooley must remember that many people on relief to-day would never have been on relief if the present government had gone to the country in 1932 when it knew the people of British Columbia were dissatisfied with it.

When some one got up in the audience and asked if any Cabinet minister was able to keep two people on $14 per month, and out of the $14 must pay $1 for light, $2 for water, put a little by each month for taxes or they would not only take the water which God has sent down from heaven, but we also take the very roof from over your head, Hon. Mr. Pooley jumps up and says, "What more do you want?" The reply was "A little more work" so the people of Sooke, whose water has been cut off, could earn enough to pay for it. Mr. Pooley replies, "Do you want more charity, more help from the government?" Hon. Mr. Hinchliffe says, "God did not put the water in the pipes." No, but it comes pretty near to it, when the water comes down from heaven, enters the Sooke Lake and flows out on the pipe.

A VOTER.

PREMIER TOLMIE AND THE PUBLIC DEBT

To the Editor:—I attach a memorandum regarding the public debt of the province which shows that the gross debt was increased by $60,079,270 during the twelve years the Liberals were in office and by $60,000,000 during the five years the Tolmie government has had charge of the Treasury. At the Chamber of Commerce meeting I explained the purposes for which the Liberal government borrowed. A very large amount of the Tolmie government borrowings was for the purpose of covering deficits on current account, as was admitted by the Minister of Finance in his last budget speech.

Premier Tolmie was reported in the morning paper on October 3 as having stated at Royal Oak: "The Premier, quoted from statistics signed by the officials of the present Department of Finance showing that the Liberal government had started with a public debt of $25,000,000 and had increased it to $104,000,000 in its term of office." I cannot believe that officials of the Department of Finance signed any such statement. I am more inclined to think the Premier misunderstood the figures and consequently made an error of $20,000,000, which is the amount of the contingent liability for Pacific Great Eastern Railway guarantee, and which is not included in the funded debt in the Public Accounts. It is listed under the head of "guarantees," as may be seen in the balance sheet presented last season.

When I quote figures regarding the expenditures or debt of the province I do so with the responsibility of one who has held the office of Minister of Finance for nearly eight years.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

To the Editor:—In addressing a Victoria audience on Thursday evening W. C. Moreby, K.C., candidate for the Legislature, expressed his view with reference to the Provincial Department of Agriculture. The report states:

"In this respect, he was particularly critical of the manner in which overlapping occurred in the matter of agriculture between the provincial and federal departments and the University of British Columbia. It was his opinion that the Department of Agriculture, pruning both root and branch from top to bottom, should take place, not with a knife, but with an axe."

Whether any other motive prompted Mr. Moreby to express these views, it is not stated in the press report, but apparently his objection to the Provincial Department of Agriculture is based on the assumption of overlapping with the federal department and the University of British Columbia. It is remarkable that a man of Mr. Moreby's intelligence and legal training should express an off-hand opinion on a subject of this character without knowing the facts in relation to same.

For a number of years there has been no overlapping in the duties of officials of the various branches mentioned. There has been a well-defined demarcation under a co-operative working agreement and each branch refrains from interference with matters dealt with by the other branch. Under such circumstances Mr. Moreby's objections appear to be without merit.

According to the press report, the most objection to the provincial department because of personal aversion to assisting struggling farmers in pioneer districts of the province, or on laudable grounds of reducing provincial expenditures.

Whilst all other industries producing basic commodities have shown a very serious reduction in the value of the commodities produced, agriculture has maintained its volume with slight impairment and in 1932 showed greater production than in any year of the basic industries of the province.

If Mr. Moreby's reasons were the reduction of provincial expenditures he would have pointed out the fact that the cost of the Department of Agriculture in 1932 was less than 1.3 per cent of the total government expenditure and less than nine-tenths of 1 per cent of the value of the commodities produced. In view of these facts Mr. Moreby appears to be "straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel," for he appears to have singled out this department for ruthless extermination. Surely there are some other constructive proposals which he can offer. Very much greater curtailment of provincial expenditures.

The proposals referred to above give color to a report emanating from Vancouver to the effect that, in the event of certain impending changes in administration at the Parliament Buildings, the Provincial Department of Agriculture would be transferred to the supervision of the Faculty of Agriculture at the University of British Columbia, which change could not be effected with any reduction in expenditures, but would simply bring about the transfer of government administration from Victoria to Vancouver.

"SUCCESSFUL" BUSINESS MEN IN POLITICS

To the Editor:—With so much of you available space taken up by the astute articles appearing regarding "Available Amy" and her serpent sinistrous (in our seriously critical fiddling whilst Rome is burning), shall appreciate the opportunity of relating the suggestions appearing in your editorial columns and expressing our re-echoed by many of the candidate for election to the Legislature, that must necessarily be successful in his own business in order to justify his appealing to the electors, or to imagine that he should be able to render effective service to the Common wealth.

Historically speaking, sir, this is very unsound ground to take. Edmund Burke, whose opinions have been cited by several during this campaign as strong advocates of "stable government," whose weighty words of warning have been used against voting for "inexperienced politicians" was notoriously unsuccessful in his own business affairs, constantly in debt, threatened with seizure by the bailiff and died practically insolvent.

Abraham Lincoln, the beloved emancipator, and the greatest President America has ever had, failed time and again in his early business enterprises whilst Ulysses S. Grant, the famous general, who led the Northern forces to ultimate victory, was discovered at the outbreak of hostilities, a poor, out-of-elbows, ne'er-do-well, peddling wool from the bush around the little community in which he lived for a dollar or so per load, and even later his term at the White House as President, sustained the most disastrous business reverses of his chequered career.

Has it not been recorded concerning "The Man of Nazareth," that although he could feed the multitude, he had not where to lay his own head, whilst his enemies when he later ate the Cross, cried "He saved others, Himself He cannot save."

It has usually been accounted additional glory to such men as Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir Wilfrid Laurier that after years of devoted service to

Women Should Study Political Economy

Says Miss J. Daughinee in Address to Business Women's Club

Tells of Hamilton Convention and Also of Chicago Women's Congress

The study of political economy was commended to women in general and business women in particular by Miss Josephine Daughinee, president of the Canadian Business and Professional Women's Club, before members of the local club on Saturday evening. The occasion was the dinner arranged in honor of the speaker and held in the Y.W.C.A. Miss Margaret Clay, the club president, presided, and other guests at the head table included: Miss Winnifred Hutchinson, National Y.W.C.A. official, Miss E. Grubbe, general secretary of the Friendly Help Welfare Association, and Miss Blackley, secretary of the local "Y."

Miss Daughinee gave a most interesting review of the deliberations at the annual convention of the Federation held in Hamilton, Ontario, recently. She touched upon the various reports presented by the heads of the committees in charge of the manifold activities of the business women throughout Canada. The speaker noted the individuality of each of the clubs throughout the Dominion, each undertaking some worth while work of its own, while at the same time co-operating splendidly in the more general projects of the Federation. She commended the idea of study groups.

At the close of her address, Miss Daughinee was presented with a bouquet of roses by Miss Elsie Richardson, who expressed the club's appreciation of her helpful talk.

Yesterday Miss Daughinee was the guest of some of the club members at an informal luncheon party at the Chateau, Deep Cove, and on her return to town was the guest of honor at a little tea party given by Miss Elsie Richardson, Bond Street.

LADY DAVIS IS WED SECRETLY

Widow of Canadian Multi-millionaire Now Mrs. Eric Loder

New York, Oct. 23.—The New York American says Lady Davis, widow of Sir Mortimer Davis, Canadian multi-millionaire, secretly married Major Eric R. Loder at Long Branch, N.J., last December 17.

The marriage became known, it said, at a supper party Saturday evening. Mrs. Loder, born Eleanor Curran of New Orleans, first married Count Morton, an attaché of the Italian consulate in her native city. They were divorced in 1924, and in the same year she married Sir Mortimer, who left a fortune estimated up to $150,000,000. Sir Mortimer presented his wife with jewels worth more than $1,000,000 as a wedding gift.

Mrs. Loder has been a leader in Parisian society as well as in New York and Canada. Major Loder, popular in London society, first married Gabrielle Ray, the English actress. They were divorced shortly after the outbreak of the Great War, and in 1920 he married Lady Lawton, granddaughter of the late Lord Fitzgibbon. By that marriage, which ended in a divorce in 1925, Loder has a twelve-year-old daughter, Pamela. He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Loder of Haldenburgh, Hertfordshire, England, and a grandson of the late Sir Robert Loder.

FAREWELL KISSES BLOCK TRAFFIC

Associated Press
Bronxville, N.Y., Oct. 23.—The old commuters' custom of last-minute wife-kissing in the New York Central Station here will be taboo after Wednesday—it blocks traffic.

Police Commissioner Philip W. Knicker said he had received many complaints from persons whose last-minute dashes from trains have been blocked by husbands and wives bidding each other ocularly farewells. Two policemen will warn commuters Monday and Tuesday. Wednesday and thereafter a last-moment kiss may result in a court summons.

OXFORD UNBENDS TO ITS CO-EDS

Canadian Press
London, Oct. 23.—Twenty women undergraduates at Oxford are to be invited to join the Oxford University Opera Club. In the past membership has been restricted to male members of the university, and at all previous performances the club has had to rely on outside talent for the female members of the cast. Now women undergraduates will appear on the stage for the first time.

Another concession has just been made, this time to members of both sexes. In the past undergraduates were only permitted to skate in the evenings, but now they can skate every night except Saturday and Sunday.

STORE DRAMA ON WEDNESDAY

Hudson's Bay Beaver Club Will Give Bohemian Night at Crystal Garden

COWICHAN ELECTS GOLF OFFICERS

C. R. Drayton Re-elected President; Club Has Satisfactory Balance Sheet

Special to The Times
Duncan, Oct. 23.—One of the most successful meetings in the history of the Cowichan Golf Club took place in the clubhouse October 19, with C. R. Drayton, president.

The president pointed out how the club's liabilities had been reduced by $1,750 through the playing members having blocks of debentures returning theirs to the club for the remission of the annual interest off their dues. Dr. Drayton stated he hoped that more would be turned in. He thanked the ladies for their help in extending the pavilion, adding further fixtures to the ladies' locker room, tarring and sanding the roof, and hallowmowing.

Mrs. G. G. Shaw, by giving a series of bridge teas, and Miss Phoebe Hogan, by getting up a dance and bridge drive at the Buena Vista, had been chiefly instrumental in having these very necessary alterations and additions made.

In touching on the balance sheet, which in view of the drop in membership and green fees, was very satisfactory, Mr. Drayton brought very forcibly before the members the necessity for a complete new outfit for cutting the fairways as the present tractor and mowers were worn out. He suggested a three-unit mower pulled by a horse would be the most economical.

The following special committee was appointed to deal with the matter: P. Wells-Henderson, chairman; H. A. Rhodes, M. C. Koechlin, C. R. Aldersmith and J. E. Fugh.

Officers elected were as follows: President, C. R. Drayton; re-elected; vice-president and captain, T. A. Havemeyer; secretary, E. W. Carr-Hilton; re-elected; committee, Miss Phoebe Hogan, Miss Jean Duncan, W. Prest, Col. F. A. M. Slater and R. Alan Rhodes.

PETS GUARD BODY

New York, Oct. 23 (Canadian Press).—Five poodles guarded the body of Mrs. Myrtle Hoag, once well-to-do, who died in poverty in a tiny flat. The dogs had to be dragged away before an ambulance crew could remove the body yesterday. Mrs. Hoag was said to be the widow of a former city official.

FIGHTER TO WED ASTOR WIDOW

New York, Oct. 23.—The New York American says that a fighter pilot will marry the widow of a former city official.

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

The breakfast menu in many families remains almost unvaried from day to day. The fruit, toast, and coffee meal that can be quickly prepared and quickly eaten is apparently satisfactory and the busy housewife is inclined to follow the line of least resistance.

During cold weather everyone needs heartier food and if breakfast were made more interesting a more adequate meal might be eaten and the day started with greater vigor. Hearty breakfasts and light luncheons balance the day's menu better than the breakfastless or very light breakfast regime.

DRYED FRUITS FOR VARIETY
Fresh, canned and dried fruits are available in such variety that it is possible to have a different fruit every day for several weeks. This variety makes for economy, since dried fruits are much cheaper than fresh ones and can be used on alternate mornings.

Cereals also are offered in great variety. Hot cereals are especially suitable for cold weather breakfasts and may be had in almost any grain and in many different kinds of milling. Ready-to-serve cereals can be used for the sake of variety when some other hot dish is included in the menu.

The third course of the breakfast menu requires thought and planning if the home-maker would serve other than the hackneyed combinations of bacon and eggs. Excellent as these foods are, they lose their popularity if repeated daily.

Fish is good for a breakfast dish. Fresh "pan" fish are quickly and easily cooked and are plentiful and cheap in many localities. The smoked and salted varieties have a pleasant tang that compare favorably with ham and bacon.

VEGETABLES FOR BREAKFAST
Dried beef suggests another chance for the third course and can be prepared in many appetizing ways.

Vegetables too seldom are used for breakfast. Creamed on toast with a garnish of crisp bacon, in hash, omelets and sauces, they offer an infinite diversity of food.

Muffins, griddle cakes, waffles and French toast provide a welcome change from toast every morning. The different grains and flours make it possible to serve these breadstuffs in great variety. Muffins can be mixed ready for the eggs and milk the night before. Griddle cakes and waffles can be mixed ready for baking and kept in the ice-box over night.

To-morrow's Menu
Breakfast — Grapes, cereals, cream, baked omelette with tomatoes, crisp whole wheat toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon — Carrot timbales with cheese sauce, romaine with French dressing, bran rolls, grape sponge, milk, tea.

Dinner — Ham baked in sweet cider, potatoes au gratin, buttered cauliflower, curly endive with Roquefort cheese dressing, ginger bread with whipped cream, milk, coffee.

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

The breakfast menu in many families remains almost unvaried from day to day. The fruit, toast, and coffee meal that can be quickly prepared and quickly eaten is apparently satisfactory and the busy housewife is inclined to follow the line of least resistance.

During cold weather everyone needs heartier food and if breakfast were made more interesting a more adequate meal might be eaten and the day started with greater vigor. Hearty breakfasts and light luncheons balance the day's menu better than the breakfastless or very light breakfast regime.

DRYED FRUITS FOR VARIETY
Fresh, canned and dried fruits are available in such variety that it is possible to have a different fruit every day for several weeks. This variety makes for economy, since dried fruits are much cheaper than fresh ones and can be used on alternate mornings.

Cereals also are offered in great variety. Hot cereals are especially suitable for cold weather breakfasts and may be had in almost any grain and in many different kinds of milling. Ready-to-serve cereals can be used for the sake of variety when some other hot dish is included in the menu.

The third course of the breakfast menu requires thought and planning if the home-maker would serve other than the hackneyed combinations of bacon and eggs. Excellent as these foods are, they lose their popularity if repeated daily.

Fish is good for a breakfast dish. Fresh "pan" fish are quickly and easily cooked and are plentiful and cheap in many localities. The smoked and salted varieties have a pleasant tang that compare favorably with ham and bacon.

SOCIAL, PERSONAL AND HOME INTERESTS

Man With a Thousand Masks

By Augustus Muir

"Good-bye!" said the flower-girl below her breath, but he caught the sound of it, and laughed again. Was it so very unusual, he wondered, for a man to be bit tucked up about his good fortune? Perhaps his own had been too good to last!

The thought sobered him a little, but not for long, because it was his nature to be resilient, and the sudden prospect of lunch revived his spirits. Lunch! Where should he go? Back to the hotel? He thought not.

He didn't feel quite at home in that hotel! It was very new, and large and fashionable. He had put up at the Marquise only because a man on the boat train had recommended it. No, he would lunch at the hotel to do on those special days when he'd felt riotously flush of cash and could risk one of the tremendous grilles and steaks they gave you at that little pub near Leicester sq.

When he entered the steel and black marble hall of the Marquise, London's newest and most expensive hotel, he found that both lifts were upstairs, so he strolled up the wide staircase with its carpet that yielded to the feet like an ancient meadow turf, and made for his room on the third floor. The second one from the end of the corridor was his, and he was fumbling for his key when he noticed that the door was ajar. He pushed it open and walked in humming under his breath, then drew back in dismay.

He saw that he had blundered. Instead of entering his own room, he had stepped into the tiny passage of a self-contained suite. He prepared to back out hastily, but he saw that it was too late. In front of him a door stood open, and at a large table beside the window sat a girl.

Alan Gilmour grabbed the pipe from his mouth and stuck it into his pocket.

"I'm beastly sorry," he said. "I think I've come to the wrong floor."

A rapid glance told him that the room was furnished like an office. On the wall to his left, the doors of a square steel cabinet stood open, disclosing row upon row of letter files. Besides it were several black deed boxes, and on the table was a little pile of documents tied with red tape. The girl, who had been busy at a typewriter, looked up with a smile, and Alan Gilmour stared at her in surprise.

The reason for his surprise was a simple one. His first glance had told him little more than the obvious fact that she was a girl, but a second look revealed something more—namely, that she was quite the most beautiful creature he had ever seen.

She was of a type that does not appeal to everybody but he was ready to acknowledge that at once. There was no vivacity, no hint of archness in her response, to his stammering apology; and, indeed, her look was almost one of sadness. And yet, to Gilmour's eye, she made an impression of almost flawless beauty. The perfect oval of her face, the long-shadowed eyes, the full lips and full rounded chin, the soft dark hair; these might have come straight from a Rossetti picture, and the effect was intensified by the sweet and mysterious quality of her smile as she looked up at him.

"I thought for a moment you had come to see Sir Richard," she said. Her voice was soft contralto.

"Sir Richard?"

"Sir Richard Templeton," she explained. "This is his suite; he lives here."

Templeton, Alan Gilmour knew the name quite well; knew the man's face too, from photographs of the famous barrister he'd seen in the English papers out East in the last few years. Why he'd been reading about him that very morning! Strange that he should have stumbled into Sir Richard Templeton's suite in the Marquise.

Well, anyway, Templeton seemed to have an eye for the city offices of the National Bank of India, where he presented his letter of credit, and was given a check book; then he spent an hour at a tailor's in Curzon Street. These two visits, intimately personal he had looked forward to with a certain pleasure; but for some reason or other, he was glad to get them over and be back to the hotel lounge with a quiet cigarette. When he squared up to the truth, he was compelled to admit that his mental disturbance had begun at the moment when he had come face to face with the girl in Sir Richard Templeton's suite upstairs.

It was ridiculous! He ordered tea, and tried to forget about her, but before the tea arrived, her dark, wistful eyes, her white hands, her finely poised body were dancing in his thoughts once more.

Beyond the glass screen the figure of a man passed, walking quickly. Gilmour sat up in his chair, for he recognized Templeton; and as he watched the barrister making for the front door, and getting into a taxi, an idea came to him.

It was an absurd idea, and he knew it was absurd. But he was on his feet and going towards the lift before he allowed himself to change his mind. Something told him that he was about to make a complete fool of himself, but there was a dancing imp within him that refused to be quiescent.

He buttoned up his jacket, squared his shoulders and knocked at the second door from the end of the corridor.

Princess Naidu of India royalty is considered the most beautiful woman in her country, and is a dancer of renown. European artists call her most perfect of her type.

There was no reply. It was now 5 o'clock, he noticed; perhaps she had already gone. He knocked again, this time more loudly, and pressed the electric bell. His disappointment merged into the warm wave of consolation that swept over him. He was well out of this! By George, what a fool he might have looked! And he was in the act of turning away when the door was suddenly opened.

During the next five seconds the only thing he noticed about Sir Richard Templeton's secretary was the expression in her eyes. It puzzled him, and it made him forget his own qualms. For the expression seemed to be one of fear—deadly fear—as though she had opened the door in apprehension of what she might see beyond it. And then, as she stared at him, the terror gave place to relief, and she held the door wide open.

"I'm very sorry," she said. "I hope I haven't kept you waiting."

Alan Gilmour thought quickly. So she had heard his first knock! It looked, he decided, as though she was expecting a visit from somebody who wasn't exactly welcome. That first terrified glance of hers had given him a jolt, though she was now doing her best to seem at ease.

"Sir Richard's out?" he asked.

"Yes, and I'm sorry he'll be engaged to-morrow."

"That's quite all right," Gilmour assured her. "It isn't Sir Richard I've come to see. It's you."

"It?"

Just for an instant he saw again that flash of fear in her eyes. But now she had more control of herself, and she drew back, puzzled.

"It's nothing much," he said. "I thought you wouldn't mind doing me a favor—helping me. You see, I've just got back to London to-day after six years, and I haven't quite found my feet yet. Since you're in touch with legal matters and that sort of thing, it struck me that perhaps you wouldn't mind telling me of a firm of solicitors."

"One of the smaller people would do quite well."

"Come in, won't you?" said Sir Richard Templeton's secretary, leading the way into her room.

He noticed that she carefully closed the outer door of the suite, and that she was looking at him doubtfully. The October sun, setting over the roof of Carlton House Terrace, shone into the room and lit up her hair. Like her eyes it was rich dark brown, vivid against her pale smooth skin.

"What kind of a party are you going to give now?"

"A bean party!" answered Uncle Wiggily. "You see I have had candy parties and cake parties and lollypop parties and I think a bean party would be nice."

"So do I," said Billie. "But what is a bean party, Uncle Wiggily?"

"It's like this," answered the rabbit gentleman. "You know in my garden grow many bean vines. In the summer the beans are long green or yellow pods which can be cut up and boiled. But summer is past. The bean poes are no longer tender and green. They are hard and dry and inside them are hard, dry beans which must be baked in the oven.

"Now I am going to cut down my bean vines and put them in my barn. Then I want all you animal boys and girls to come to the party and shell the beans."

"How do we do that?" asked Billie.

"I will pile the bean pods on the floor of the barn," said Uncle Wiggily. "Then you boys and girls will dance and skip and run and hop on them. That will burst the dried pods open and out will pop the beans."

"That will be a dandy party!" cried Billie. "I'll go tell Nannie!"

"Yes, but how can you get the beans out of all the mess of pods and vines?" asked Billie's Bunty.

"Very easily," said Uncle Wiggily. "I'll show you." With a rake he pulled off the floor the broken vines and pods. Then beans, being small, slipped through the teeth of the rake and remained on the floor. Then Uncle Wiggily gathered the white beans into bags after first blowing out, with a big fan, the broken pieces of pods and vines.

"Is this all there is to a bean party?" asked Billie the goat.

"Oh, no," said Uncle Wiggily. "The best part is yet to come. Bring in the ice cream, Nurse Jane!" so Miss Fuzzy Wuzzey brought it in and the animal boys and girls who had thrashed out the beans had a grand time eating ice cream and cake.

"I wish Uncle Wig would give a bean party every day," said Billie.

"And if the tooth brush doesn't take a bite out of you, the cake before the jumping rope has a turn, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's yellow horse."

Uncle Wiggily's Bean Party

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

Once upon a time Billie Wagtail, the boy goat, knocked with his horns on Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump door.

"At a tat tat!" Billie's horns banged on the door.

"What is it?" asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzey.

"I want to ask Uncle Wiggily something," bleated Billie. "The minkrat lady housekeeper wanted to know."

"Thank you, but I hardly think you can tell me," said the goat.

"You might try," suggested Miss Fuzzy Wuzzey, as she looked to make sure that the ribbon bow on her tail had not slipped off to go swimming in the water with the dirty dishes. "What do you want, Billie?"

"Well, said Billie, "I would like to know when Uncle Wiggily is going to have another party. Parties are such fun, and my sister Nannie and I were talking about them. So Nannie said for me to come over and find out when Uncle Wiggily was going to have another party."

"Oh, run along with you!" laughed Nurse Jane. "Don't come around bothering me with such nonsense. Uncle Wiggily isn't going to have any more parties. He is 'too busy.'"

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear! Oh, dear!" said bleated Billie. "This is too bad! No more parties! What do you mean?"

"Just more parties! This is too bad!" said Nurse Jane. "Uncle Wiggily himself says, 'Just then, came hopping down the hall. "Do you mean you can't go to any more parties, Billie?"

"Oh, I could go to a party if there was one, and so could my sister Nannie," bleated the goat boy. "But Nurse Jane said you were never going to have parties again."

"Well, I am," said Mr. Longears. "I didn't tell you, Nurse Jane," he said. "But I'm going to give another party."

"Land sakes!" exclaimed Nurse Jane.

Horoscope

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1933

Again bodeful aspects rule strongly in the horoscope for the day, according to astrology. The planetary government encourages the use of all one's best energies. Although the early morning hours are not auspicious for starting new projects, effort should be concentrated on what has already gained impetus.

The stars seem to warn against the scattering of interest and strength on many enterprises. Success is presaged on the co-ordinating of various branches of work, astrophysicists emphasize.

The day benefits industry and seems to favor smooth operation of many lines of manufacturing and merchandising.

Preferment for naval officers is prognosticated and service in the Pacific Ocean is to bring honors.

The stars should profit for the stage is to return to something of its old-time magic and glamour. The drama will mean much to the younger generation.

The season at the national capital is to offer many innovations in social usage and to prove of extraordinary interest, it is forecast. Women's clubs are to attain unusual prominence.

Persons whose birthdays it is have the augury of a year of real happiness, to which romance will contribute much to persons young and middle-aged.

Children born on this day probably will be exceedingly clever and intelligent. Subjects of this sign usually combine several definite talents.

John Gargrave, successful artist, was born on this day, 1884. Others who have celebrated a birthday, according to the stars, are: H. A. H. 1798, author of "Mary's Little Lamb," and brother of Thanksgiving Day, and Dr. C. B. 1865, Journalist.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDERD

BABY SHOULD SET TIME FOR HIS NIGHT FEEDINGS

Almost every mother of a well-fed baby discovers for herself that if baby is left alone, he will generally sleep through his 10 p.m. feeding. It seems quite natural for him to waken about six hours after going to bed, and then after a satisfying meal to sleep again until morning.

This state of affairs is enormously conducive to the mother's well-being, her good nature, and her ability to provide abundant nourishment. But so often mothers are afraid to trust their own judgement and their baby's Persistent headaches, with tired feelings and irritability tell of exhausted nerves—that you are living at too high a tension. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food feeds the blood and the nerves back to health and vigor.

No Woman Is Man's Equal. Say Reader

Laughs at Out-Moded Ideas

Dorothy Dix

Manhood Is Not Only Decadent in This Country; It Is Dead, Cries Irate Male Reader—Only by Lowering Himself Can Any Man Accept Any Woman as Equal!

I HAVE an irate letter from a young man who simply foams at the mouth at the thought of a wife having the presumption to consider herself her husband's equal and who is so lost to all sense of shame as to regard marriage as a partnership. He says that he has made it plain to the young woman he has consensated to ask to be his wife that he is to be the head of the house and that she must submit to his direction in everything, although she is better educated than he is.

Then he goes on to say: "The great majority of men never admire a woman and her abilities anywhere but in the family circle. Woman's idea that the outside world cannot get along without her talent is her own misfortune, and her harping on her independence and equality is what brings about domestic discord. As for me, I refuse to subscribe to living in a state in which I should feel as though I had a dunce cap on my head, which I would do if I admitted the state of man and woman being equal. It would take away all the pride of manhood."

"I have seen enough of the families where 'live with me, love with me' is of course, meant that the man was just another well-trained American husband. Manhood is not only decadent in this country, it is dead. Men have ceased to be conscious of the pride of manhood. They are led by women. For a man to treat a woman as his equal he must either be a poor specimen of manhood or he must lower his status to the proper level."

Well, doesn't that letter sound like something out of the hair trunk in the attic? Who could have believed that there was any such set of ideas outside of an antique store?

Wake up, Mr. Rip Van Winkle Jr. You are at least fifty years behind the times. The subject of sex equality is just about as much a burning topic of discussion nowadays as is the right of secession or the folly of anybody even imagining that a boat could be built that would go across the Atlantic in two weeks' time or that anybody could ever possibly fly through the air.

Intelligent people don't bother about sex equality because they know there is no such thing and never can be any such thing. They know that neither sex is superior or inferior to the other. They know that there are some men stronger than some women. They know that there are some men better morally than some women. And they also know that there are women who are stronger physically, who are better morally and who have ten times the brains of many men.

Neither sex has a monopoly on the virtues, and just because man happens to be born of the masculine persuasion doesn't automatically fit him to boss and direct all women. Think of the absurdity of a little anemic man, who wears a fourteen collar, trying to handle a strong woman of the circus! Imagine a $10-a-week clerk advising a Hetty Green about her investments!

In the prehistoric times, to which my correspondent belongs, the superstition prevailed that just because a man was a man he was superior to all women, but very few cling to that hoary tradition now. We know that it is not a matter of sex but of individuality, and while probably in his highest estate the very strong man or the very intelligent man is a little stronger and a little more intelligent than any woman is, the vast majority of men and women are much of a muckness.

The average husband realizes this. He recognizes that the good Lord has endowed his Mary Jane with brains and brawn that she has developed by study and outdoor sports, and so he accepts her as his equal and listens to her advice and lets her help him in whatever way she is most efficient. It is not lack of virility, as my correspondent thinks, that causes the average husband to go fifty-fifty with his wife, but bigness and broadness of view and a sense of justice and the knowledge that the altered status of women has also altered their status as wives.

It is as foolish to treat a college-bred woman, who has held down a good job before marriage, as men used to treat uneducated, timid little women who had never earned a dollar in their lives, as it would be to try to treat a modern servant as slaves used to be treated. "The world do move," as Brother Jasper used to say, and women and matrimony have moved with it.

Nor is it true that the great majority of men never admire a woman and her abilities anywhere but in the family circle. What about the famous women doctors and lawyers and sculptors and writers and business women? They never would have achieved fame on the exclusive approbation of their own sex. One of the days when it was worse than a scandal for a woman to be known as a blue stocking. Why, men are not even satisfied with wives who confine their interests to the family circle and whose whole conversational repertoire runs from the kitchen to the nursery and back again.

As for any man in these times being the undisputed head of the house, he has just one chance in being it, and that consists in marrying a spineless woman, which doesn't seem a very alluring prospect for the price of being able to lay down the law to a poor little cowed wife.

So if my correspondent wishes to be happy though married he had better scrap his out-moded ideas about the wife's place in marriage and realize that any woman who is fit to marry has intelligence, education and independence of character and that she isn't going to be fool enough to make such a losing bargain as to put all that she is and has into the matrimonial partnership and get nothing out of it but being bossed.

Wonders of Nature

MT. EVEREST

Several months ago aviators flew for the first time about the snow-capped peak of Mt. Everest. Previous efforts to climb the mountain had failed; but what could not be done by the use of muscles in painful climbing, was done with the help of a machine. The aviators reached a point even higher than the top of the famous mountain.

When I mention that exact number, I want to speak of two points. First, it is not so far as it seems to climb to the top of a mountain in order to judge its height. That may be done with surveying instruments and the use of the science of geometry, even though no human being has set foot on the top.

The second point is that estimates are not always correct, but when tests on a high peak are made with care, they are not likely to differ more than 200 feet.

Even though the height of Mt. Everest may not be exactly 29,002 feet, it is safe to say that the peak is close to five and a half miles high. That is about half the height which Russian aviators made last month when they made their record balloon ascent.

Mt. Everest is one of the wonders of Nature. On every continent, including Africa and Australia, mountains have been formed; but in beauty as well as in height Mt. Everest stands forth as a special wonder. The name was given in honor of an Englishman, George Everest. In 1841, he finished a long survey of the Himalayan mountains, including this peak.

SNOW IN KOOTENAYS

Nelson, B.C., Oct. 23.—Heavy snow-fall was general throughout the Kootenays Saturday night and Sunday morning. The storm spread south of here across the Washington border. Spokane awakened under a blanket of two inches of snow on Sunday.

An improved highway between Seattle, Wash. and Fairbanks, Alaska, a distance of 2,350 miles, has been proposed.

Twenty-nine thousand and two feet is the height given for Mt. Everest.

The position you will be in at sixty or upwards depends largely on the financial foundation you are building to-day. Determine now that the good years ahead will provide for those still further on. The safest, simplest way is with a Manufacturers Life Long Term Endowment which is within the reach of any young man with even an ordinary income.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The annual general meeting of the B.C. Drama Festival will be held in the City Hall on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. The interested public is invited.

Harold Smith, manager of the Art Point Car Company, was accepted into the membership of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at a directors' luncheon of the senior body to-day.

Applications of H. Despard Twigg, of A. E. Jukes and Company, and George E. Willis, for membership in the Senior and Junior Chamber of Commerce, respectively, were approved by the directors at luncheon to-day.

Theft of three sets of carpenter's tools from a new building on the old Bowker estate, Beach Drive, was reported to the Oak Bay Police this morning. The tools, taken over the week-end, belonged to Eli Hume, contractor, his son, and Charles Webb.

S. Hemmy, 835-Caledonia Avenue, and S. Smart, 1845 Fern Street, were the winners of the attendance prizes awarded at the radio show recently held by the B.C. Electric Railway Company at the Douglas Street sales. Hemmy received an electric clock and S. Smart a handsome table lamp.

"Political Economy" will be the subject for discussion at a public meeting called by the Victoria Ratepayers' Association for to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium. The executive of the association claims that candidates in the provincial election campaign have apparently ignored the problems of the taxpayers and have described the gathering to-morrow as an "indignation meeting."

Application was made to the government to-day to restore to the Vancouver list fifty-four names of voters left off by mistake. As receipts were given and acknowledgment made by the returning officer, election officials see little difficulty in putting the names on the roll. Meanwhile election officials are endeavoring to locate the list which was evidently misplaced when the thousands of names on the mainland city roll were checked.

FINDS JUANITA UNSEAWORTHYJudge Says Bottom Wood of Cruiser Beached at Shoal Bay Was Rotten

The cruiser "Juanita," which came to the end of her days on Shoal Bay Beach last summer after being run aground by the crew when they found her filling with water while passing through Trial Island Sound, was not a rotten piece of wood, Judge Lampan ruled to-day in handing down judgment.

Referring to a sample of wood from the bottom of the boat produced in court, the judge said:
"This piece of wood is obviously rotten."

The suit over the "Juanita" was brought by Wilfred Arnold Pomroy and Jean McAndrew Dunningan, who claimed they had bought her to trade up the West Coast and that it had been indicated she was in a sufficiently stout condition to withstand the heavy seas up there.

Wilfred A. Beckwith as their lawyer, sued Eugene Robert, vendor, for rescission of their contract to purchase and for return of the down payment they had made when they took the boat at Canoe Cove, just north of Sidney, and started with her for Victoria. G. H. Sedger conducted the defence.

The judge referred to the sale advertising of the boat in which she was described as being "in first class shape." The plaintiffs told Mr. Johnson, the judge pointed out that the boat was a vessel for use on the West Coast of Vancouver Island and Mr. Johnson then said the launch was seaworthy.

"The conclusion I have come to is that she was unseaworthy and not in the condition represented."
"The defence suggested that if the anchor had been dropped in Shoal Bay she would have been saved. But it appears the anchor had been lost. However, that does not affect the case as the occupants of the launch at the time were afraid she would sink before they reached shore and anchors are not thrown out in such circumstances. I am satisfied the plaintiffs are entitled to some relief."

As to the question of whether the representation was fraudulent or innocent, the judge said: "The equitable doctrine is founded on the principle that a man should not be allowed to take advantage of his own false statement, the word 'false' being used as equivalent to 'untrue,' but not necessarily conveying the idea of being 'deceitful.' In the case of deceit full damage may be recovered, but in the case of recision for innocent misrepresentation, the relief is of a different kind. In the case of deceit getting damages is only entitled to have the contract rescinded and to such consequential relief as follows from rescission."

The judge ordered that the engine and other parts saved from the wreck on Shoal Bay beach should be delivered to Mr. Johnson and the agreement should be cancelled and Capt. Pomroy and his partner relieved from all liability thereunder and in respect to the balance of the purchase price. As the plaintiffs could make only a partial restitution, the judge said he would not rule that Mr. Johnson return $50 they had paid him.

Many Witnessed In Public SurrenderPeople Rose at Oxford Group Gathering and Testified to Changed LivesPreparations Made For Overflow Meeting as House Party Concludes To-night

Public surrender by a large number of people who have embraced the teachings of the Oxford Group Movement was the highlight of the post-church gathering of the International house party at the Empress Hotel last night.

Members of the congregations of the city and district churches at which Oxford Groups had spoken from the pulpit, attended the ballroom meeting, held from 9:15 to 10:30 o'clock. The auditorium was crowded to overflowing. A. M. D. Fairbairn was the leader, the chief platform speakers being: Dr. Primrose Wells, Duncan; Heber Brown and Fred Lucas, Vancouver, and Mrs. Nancy Spurgin, Victoria. Members of the local clergy and prominent citizens were present.

People stood up in the body of the hall testifying to changed lives and the desire to be governed by the principles of the Oxford Group. The gathering was a sincere of youth.

The youthful element of the city met in the ballroom yesterday afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock, guided by Stanley "Whithead." There were between 50 and 60 young men and girls of the "teen age" on the platform and witnessing was general.

Members of the movement said it was a joy to behold the absolute sincerity of the young people who crowded the hall.

The communion held Sunday morning was largely attended.

Major and Mrs. K. B. Spurgin and Mrs. Rene Archibald, Victoria, were in charge of the family quiet time between 9 and 10 o'clock this morning at the hotel headquarters. Bible study followed and then separate groups of the older and younger people met.

The older men were in charge of W. H. Hotham, Victoria, and Fred Lucas, Vancouver. Herbert Warren, Victoria, had charge of the younger men. Edith Oliver and Mrs. R. Archibald, Victoria, and Mrs. R. Samuelson, Port Angeles, were in charge of the older women and Mrs. Isabel Duff Stuart, Vancouver, took the younger women. This afternoon, between 5 and 6 o'clock, those in charge of the various groups will be: Verne Samuelson, Fred Lucas, Adriatic Paul, Mrs. A. B. Carey, Mrs. Spurgin and Mrs. Archibald.

VISION OF FUTURE
"A Vision of the Future" will be the theme of the gathering of the movement this evening, which will be led by Mr. Fairbairn. The speakers will include: Mrs. Duff Stuart, Verne Samuelson, H. G. Garrett, W. H. Hotham, Mrs. Edith Oliver, Dr. Primrose Wells and Dean Quinton, as well as members of the Victoria Ministerial Association.

In the event of an overflow meeting being necessary, one of the halls on the lower floor of the hotel will be requisitioned.

MRS. T. SHIELDS
CALLED TO REST

Was Honorary President of Baptist W.M.S.; Died Sunday

Many friends will learn with deep sorrow of the passing of Mrs. Jennie Grace Shillinglaw Shields, widow of Thomas Shields of Brockville, Ontario, at her residence, 1189 Yates Street, yesterday. Mrs. Shields had been a resident of Victoria for twelve years and, although illness prevented her in the last few years from taking part in many church, charitable and educational activities in which she was so deeply interested, nevertheless her kindly disposition and sympathetic manner endeared her to a wide circle of friends in all walks of life. She was a devoted member of Emmanuel Baptist Church of this city and honorary president and life member of the Women's Missionary Society. There is left to mourn the loss of a loving and devoted mother, three daughters, Mrs. Andrew S. Imrie, B.A. of Victoria; Mrs. (Rev.) J. L. Sloan, M.A. of New Westminster; Miss Queenie Shields, B.A. of Victoria, and two sons, Fred F. Shields, B.A., pastor of First Baptist Church, Boise, Idaho, and Roy S. Shields, B.A., inspector of schools, New Westminster, B.C.

The funeral will be held from McCall Brothers Funeral Home to-morrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. G. A. Reynolds and Rev. T. W. McKinnon officiating. Interment will be at Royal Oak Burial Park.

Friends Cannot Aid Blind VoteReturning Officer Says Ballots Must Be Marked By Official
In Charge

F. A. Willis, returning officer for Victoria in the provincial election, stated this morning that blind voters in British Columbia will have their ballots marked for them as in the past. Following publication of information that the federal government had passed an amendment to the elections act making it possible for a blind person to have a friend of his mark the ballot, Mr. Willis took the matter up with the authorities at the Parliament Buildings.

Section 96 of the Provincial Elections Act has not been amended, said Mr. Willis this morning, "and it will be followed in this election. This section of the act says: 'On the application of any voter who is blind and unable to write, the returning officer or a person authorized by the returning officer to do so, shall mark the ballot for the voter.'"

This will mean that at least one dozen persons will watch the marking of the ballots of the blind in Victoria as every candidate or group must have a representative present. There are forty-five blind voters in Victoria.

STINK BOMBS
FAIL TO GO OFFBig Crowd at C.C.F. Meeting Kept in Expectant Mood For Nearly Three HoursPritchard Avers Ottawa Unlikely to Lend B.C. Money Without Interest

Upwards of 1,000 persons at the City Temple Saturday evening listened for nearly three hours with unbroken interest to William A. Pritchard and Mrs. Dorothy Steeves, both C.C.F. candidates for Vancouver-Point Grey, although they had been notified by the police that stink bombs had been placed in the hall by opponents and might go off at any minute.

Mr. Pritchard declared he had fought for principle all during his career and the statement he had made in his hectic soap-box days of fifteen years ago before he gained standing as reeve of Burnaby had come from his innermost soul.

"Is there anyone of the Liberals, who, at the age of forty-five can look back to his youthful days and say to himself that he had never said a word he committed an act which he regretted?" Mr. Pritchard asked. "If there is, I would like to meet him and let him be the first to cast a stone."

EXPLAINS PLATFORMS
The speaker took up the C.C.F. and other party platforms and declared that one of the planks of the other party platforms were, directly or indirectly, attached to finance. The only trouble was that in none of them was there any suggestion of how the money was to be obtained. Finance, he asserted, must be brought to a point where it could be used for the benefit of the people.

The present depression was not created so much by the maladministration of government, but through the breakdown of the industrial marketing system, Mr. Pritchard went on. "There is whole slaughter of substance. What for? To put men back to work to produce more substance. The C.C.F. proposal of social ownership is the only reasonable remedy."

He asserted the story put out that the C.C.F. intended to teach absolute socialism in the schools of British Columbia was absolutely ridiculous.

"You don't have to accept the C.C.F. platform, but examine it, analyze it and see if it does not set out the very things which are of the greatest importance to the people of British Columbia, the things that affect the whole system of living," he continued.

"The first thing to be done will be to take stock of the whole financial situation of the province. Whatever administration is in office will have to stand on its own feet and without assistance from the federal treasury. I wonder if the Liberals realize that the British Columbia treasury is empty? How do they intend to put into operation their promises of work and wages? I don't think they will get very far with their crusade to Ottawa to get a loan from Mr. Bennett without interest."

Mrs. Steeves attacked Hon. Joshua Hinchcliffe's educational policy and charged that the whole system of education here in British Columbia had been made a political football.

"Under the C.C.F. there would be a new type of education in which the teachers would be required to bring the children into relationship with the new social order, and there can be nothing terrible in that," she said.

The programme and the whole of the C.C.F. cannot be brought into effect overnight, in a day, or in a year, but steps can be taken to put the programme into shape.

During the evening the chairman announced that he had been advised by the police that political enemies of the C.C.F. had placed stink bombs in the auditorium to go off during the evening. He asked the audience not to be alarmed when they went off and to bear with the odor until it passed off now that they knew what it was to be. However, the bombs did not explode their odor by the time the meeting came to an end at 10:45 o'clock.

ACCUSED SAYS

Judgment was reserved by Magistrate George Jay in the City Police Court this morning in the case of Alfred Weaver, charged with retaining stolen goods in his possession.

Weaver was arrested by Detectives Walter Caldwell and William Stark while they were investigating a robbery at the home of J. B. Davidson, 424 Quebec Street, according to the testimony of Detective Caldwell.

At first he told the detectives he lived in Saanich, but when questioned on the point admitted he stayed at a house on Chambers Street. He accompanied the detectives there and they found four dresses and a dressing gown in a clothes closet.

Mrs. Davenport and Miss Muriel Davenport identified these articles as part of a lot taken from their home on the night of October 4.

In his own defence, Weaver claimed he had found the articles on a vacant lot on Pandora Avenue and had kept them while scanning the lost and found columns of the newspapers. The reason he did not immediately tell the detectives this fact and also told them a wife in Vancouver and because he had been accused of being a thief as soon as he was apprehended, and it made him the attitude that they could "try and prove it." He was subjected to a lengthy cross-examination by C. L. Harrison, the prosecutor.

R. S. Yates, defence counsel, called Capt. J. Walls of Work Point, who testified as to the good character of the accused during a term of one year and ten months on the permanent force.

Champion Carnera Wins Fifteen Round Decision From Uzcudun

THE SPORTS MIRROR

Present Year Has Been Tough One For Sports Experts

Boxers, Golfers, Horses and Tennis Stars Upset

Films Make Fine Showing in Major Two-year-old Stakes

THE VICTORY of the New York Giants over the Washington Senators in the world baseball series brings to mind that this is going to be a sad year for the sports, who were so sure about the Senators that they made bets. When an expert flourishes his own money you can depend upon it he feels pretty certain about his selection. Few of the big average and percentage men gave Johnny Goodman a tumble in the United States open championship. Everybody was talking about Sarazen repeating in the British open, and anybody who had mentioned Denmore Shute as the probable winner of that title, would have been tendered a cold reception.

Horse racing experts on this continent sank into a state of nervous collapse as they watched the three-year-olds refused to come through. Several psychopathic wards were said to be full of tennis experts. The United States Davis Cup team was picked to overcome France. England was not given a chance. Australia was not a place where there were too many bushes for tennis. When Helen Wills Moody reached the final of the United States women's championship with Helen Jacobs, the experts all picked Mrs. Moody, and then tried to hide their faces in despair.

There is no such thing as a boxing expert any more after the terrible things that have happened to the game this year. When that last crushing clinch came, Tommy Loughran flooring Jack Sharkey with a tap as light as a feather, the boxing experts were through. Title after title has changed hands and more than one of the wise ones who had picked the weight champion Barney Ross chalked up his second victory over Tony Canzoneri at New York.

Had it not been for the victory of Singing Wood in the Belmont Futurity, fillies would have dominated the total money earnings in major two-year-old stakes on this continent this year. Even so, it may be regarded as a great year for the yearling fillies, as the thoroughbred species. Singing Wood has earned $88,000 for Mrs. John Hay Whitney, counting his futurity triumph. But three of the next best purses of the year for yearlings went to fillies. Far Star won the Arlington Futurity and has brought in $37,115. Bazar won the Hopeful, and has earned $38,025. The Matron counted for $25,775 and the Matron Stakes.

Black Buddy has been the only colt able to repeat in stakes of any consequence, winning the Juvenile and National Stallion stakes last spring. There is no standard among the youngsters. They have been as good as beating one another, just as the three-year-olds have done this year.

Mata Hari appeared to be unbeatable in the spring, but the next best races in a row she ran out of the money as many times. Wise Daughter has been among the busiest, winning nine out of fifteen starts, placing twice, and showing twice. Her victory in the Saratoga Special marked her as one of the best of the year.

Such fillies as Bazar, Far Star, Slapdash, and Wise Daughter have been the more touted colts in such stakes as the Hopeful, Arlington Futurity, Saratoga Special and Great American.

Oddly, one of the most highly regarded colts of the season, Alex Gordon's Sir Thomas, did not win an important stake, but in the Futurity had been over a half furlong longer route he would have accounted for the rich prize. He was finishing strongly.

Four fine colts, of which much was expected in early spring, have not managed to win $10,000 apiece. They are Red Wagon, winner of the United States Hotel Stakes; High Quest, victorious in the Futurity; First Minstrel, first in the Sanford Memorial, and Elyne, winner of the Flash.

Seven colts in all have won more than $10,000 each, and six fillies have passed that figure.

The "Tour de France," a bicycle race around France, occupies the minds of French sports fans. Radio broadcasts of the sprints and columns of personalities on the competitors are featured. The oldest cyclist in the last "Tour" was Benoit-Paure, thirty-three; and the youngest was Battistini, twenty-one. The biggest was Cornet, pedaled his 194 pounds around while the lightest was Level, 132 pounds. Cyclists have tremendous appetites and often eat through the bill-of-fare twice. They are not popular with hotel-keepers as far as meals are concerned.

Bicycling is a tough grind, as one can guess from the very restricted limits of the ages mentioned. Heavyweight fighters have won titles when over forty. Fitzsimmons winning the light-weight crown at forty-one. Wrestlers go on indefinitely, many competing when over fifty. Baseball players seldom last past forty in the big leagues. Red Faber, Chicago White Sox, being a leading older in that respect with forty-four years behind him.

Primo Boomed For Failure To Knock Out Game Basque

Crowd of 70,000 at Rome Displeased With Showing of Heavyweight Titleholder

Uzcudun Absorbs Terrific Beating

Remains on His Feet After Being Groggy in Ninth; Premier Mussolini Attends

Canadian Press

Rome, Oct. 23.—Primo Carnera's first heavyweight title defence, successful though it was, had added little to the mammoth prestige in his native land today.

A crowd of 70,000 watched the huge champion punch out a decisive fifteen-round victory over Paulino Uzcudun yesterday, cheered him for a while and then booed him just as heartily in the last two rounds for his failure to stop the thirty-four-year-old Spanish veteran of more than ten years' warfare against the world's best heavyweights. Premier Mussolini was an interested spectator.

Carnera smashed the Basque wood-chopper all over the ring with a sipping left and powerful right, cut him badly about the face, staggered him in half a dozen rounds, yet never could floor a rival whose indomitable courage alone carried him through the full fifteen-round limit.

From the first few seconds of the first round, Carnera savagely rushed the veteran to the ropes and belabored him with both hands. It was apparent Paulino was in for a trouncing.

Gamely he took it. Wading courageously into his ponderous rival so he could chug his short, thick arms into Primo's body, but it was all pretty futile. Carnera stopped Paulino's rushes with short, crisp uppercuts and his tremendous reach established him to keep the Basque at a safe distance most of the way.

After taking the first four rounds by decisive margins, Carnera cut Paulino over the eye with a sharp left in the fifth, and had the Spaniard's face slashed in the next three rounds.

CARNERA BOOED

That is where the crowd took a hand and a tremendous chorus of bores rose up in the thirteenth when Carnera, who could not land a decisive punch, was obviously angered by the demonstration and tried hard for a knockout in the final round, but Paulino, still erect when the bell sounded.

Except for fairly frequent spells of wildness, Carnera looked good in his defence of the title. He won by knocking out Jack Sharkey in six rounds at New York, June 29.

The weights were announced at Carnera 259 pounds, and Uzcudun 221.

Tottenham Lucky In Earning Draw Against Everton

Referee Refuses to Give Everton Two Clear Penalties; Crowd Gets Hostile

Dunn Is Star In Arsenal Victory

Scores Both Goals to Whip Leicester; Two Division Leaders Are Topped

Canadian Press

London, Oct. 23.—Refusal of the referee to penalize ball-handlers Saturday was held by many commentators to be the reason why Tottenham Hotspurs still hold top spot in the first division of the English Football League. Spurs played a 1 to 1 tie with Everton, and came out still at the head of the standing, but with a lead over the champion Arsenal of only one point.

Forty thousand persons saw Spurs and Everton deadlock in a fast, exciting game in a scramble near the goal. Before the interval and scored with a fine shot. Everton picked up speed in the second half and pressed Spurs hard. The crowd yelled angrily when Meads, Tottenham's left half, fluted Geldard's shot out of the air with both hands and the referee refused to award a penalty.

DEADLOCK SCORE

Exactly an hour after the start of the game, Evans tied the score. Then in a scramble near the goal, Spurs' right back, Felton, fluted Dunn's shot when it was almost under the bar. The referee again refused a penalty and the crowd staged a demonstration of disapproval.

Gunnors were led nearer the top of the heap by Dunn, who scored both goals in the Arsenal 2 to 0 triumph over Leicester city. A 1 to 1 tie between Huddersfield Town and Derby County, and a 1 to 0 victory by Leeds United over Portsmouth put Leeds and Huddersfield in third place together, only a point back of the Gunnors.

Hull City beat Bolton Wanderers 1 to 0 and dropped them from the head of the Second Division. Watncoat got the only goal in the sixth minute.

NOLAN SCORES PAIR

Into the spot vacated by Wanderers marched Port Vale with a 3 to 1 victory over Bradford. It was Nolan who scored the first two goals, scoring both before the interval. In the second half Morton scored for the winners and Lewis got a single for the fifth touchdown and Shanks converted.

Close behind Rangers remained Killmarnoch and Aberdeen, the former with a 3 to 0 win over St. Johnstone and the latter with a 5 to 0 victory from Queen of the South.

In the Second Division, a two-goal whitewash by St. Bernard's dropped King's Park out of the lead. In its place victories set Dunfermline and Stenhousemuir. Dunfermline blanked Arbroath 3 to 0, and Stenhousemuir defeated Forfar Athletic 4 to 2.

Victoria Eleven In Smart Victory Over St. Saviours

Local Team Captures Opening Game in Vancouver First Division Soccer 3 to 2

Several Players Suffer Injuries

Result From Stiff Checking Tactics; Gibbons, Price and Morgan Score Local Goals

Victoria's entry in the Vancouver first division of Pacific Coast Football League got away to a flying start on Saturday afternoon by winning its debut match from St. Saviours, powerful mainland eleven, 3 to 2. Nearly 1,000 fans braved the rain and cold to watch the local club in its opener, and they were not disappointed, being treated to a hard-fought fast exhibition. Competition was keen, with the result that feeling ran high among the players, and many fouls were called. The teams were tied 1 to 1 at half-time.

In the league, with the four clubs from Vancouver, the Victoria team will play home and home matches, with its standing being figured on percentage basis. As the mainland clubs will play twice as many games as Victoria the local entry stands a good chance of making the play-off at the end of the season. The first three teams in the final averages will get into the finals to determine the champions.

HEAVY CHECKING

Both teams adopted stiff checking tactics and several players were injured during the course of the ninety minutes' play. Ronnie Williams, left half for Victoria, and Bradbury, giant centre-forward of the Saints, met in collision early in the first half, and both came out of the scramble with cuts. Bradbury got patched up and finished the game, but Williams was forced to leave the field, to be replaced by Eddie Viggers, Louis de Costa and Alsbury, goalies for Victoria and the Saints, respectively, were busy pulling off difficult saves. DeCosta was bumped hard by Watson and Bradbury crashed into one of the up-ribs, blocking a hard shot. K. Ross, right half for the Saints, was knocked cold in the first half, when Mike Wagland's boot caught him in the stomach, the referee reviewed.

The Victoria team turned in a smart exhibition, but should have won by at least three or four goals. In the first half the local eleven dominated the play, with the forwards passing up innumerable chances to score. The front liners were missing an open net, shooting high and wide, and some cut and for awhile it seemed as if they were trying to see how many times they could miss the goal. The local halves were shaky, showing a lack of control in the second half when the Saints put on the power. DeCosta turned in his usual spectacular game between the sticks.

PLAY IS FAST

The match opened with a drizzle, and the new ball soon became heavy and greasy, making it difficult to control. The Victoria forwards unleashed a series of quick passes, and Wagland landed into scoring position, but Mike's drive went over the bar. The Saints broke fast, and Bradbury headed into the goal, but the referee ruled it out of play, as Bradbury had fouled Wagland. Price, who was sent in for offside after Watt was cleared through. Youson sent in a pretty cross from right wing, and Price attempted to breast it into the goal, but Alsbury leaped to the side of his net to push the ball around the post. Price again tried to pick the corner, but he was blocked by Youson's corner, only to have the Saints' goalie block. Bradbury got a fast shot away, but it was yards wide. Play veered to the other end, again, and Alsbury blocked a shot from Price, with Morgan driving the rebound into the side of the net. The Vancouver forward line clicked to get the ball near the Victoria goal, and Arnott booted past DeCosta after being pulled up for offside. Minutes later Bradbury lifted over the bar, with only DeCosta in front of him. During a scramble in the Victoria goal Bradbury and Williams bumped their heads to start the blood flowing. Viggers replaced Williams. Price continued to have hard luck when a snap shot hit the post. DeCosta came out of his net to pick off a high ball and knocked over Bradbury in clearing.

LUCKY GOAL

Viggers and Todd, Saints left winger, engaged in a battle for possession of the ball and Todd dumped Viggers heavily. The winger was pulled up by Referee Saunders and warned when he protested the awarding of the free kick to Victoria. Morgan put Victoria in the lead with a lucky goal. The outside left sent in a dribbling shot which both Price and Harzevres, Saints' right back, missed, the ball rolling into the net with a heavy thud. Caught flat-footed, John Watt missed the goal completely on a pass from Youson with the move back to centre half. Bradbury whizzed back to drive half for the Saints and Watson went to centre forward. Victoria continued to carry the offensive. After keeping their goal clear the Saints broke fast and succeeded in tying the score. Ten minutes after the local goal, Watson heading in a cross from Moffat, right wing, DeCosta dived for the ball and caught it flat-footed. The game was held up when K. Ross was accidentally kicked by Wagland. A foul was called against Arnott for hooking Wagland, and Alsbury leaped to the corner to clear. DeCosta's shot cleared. The goal was smashed against the upright, and although he wrenched his shoulder he continued to play, before the interval, while the referee was tending to him.

MERALOMAS WIN TITLE

Defeat New Westminster 2 to 5 to Capture B.C. Canadian Football Crown

Vancouver, Oct. 23.—Meralomas marched into the interprovincial play-downs for the western Canadian football title, when they turned back New Westminster, 23 to 5, in a Big Four game here Saturday. It was Meralomas' second victory of the two-game series, which they won, 31 to 7.

Bill Henderson, New Westminster plunging line-man and one of the greatest scoring threats the Royals boasted, was carried from the field five minutes after the game started with three ribs broken.

From then on it was Meralomas game.

A Royal punt was run back to the three-yard line and Garvin plunged over for a touchdown, which Bob Eddy converted from a placement. Fouls by the Royals gave the Saints a 10 to 0 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Garvin blocked a Westminster punt in the second quarter and fell on the ball for Meralomas' second touchdown. Ferris converted.

A brilliant aerial attack put Westminster in possession on Meralomas' one-yard line, but the clubbers held and Royals lost the ball on downs. On the next play, Swanson broke through the black and orange line to fall on a fumble ball for Westminster's only score of the game.

COSTLY FUMBLE

Another fumble in the third quarter gave Meralomas another chance. Recovering in mid-field, the orange and black marched to the thirty-eight-yard line, where Ellis took the ball and skidded right end for thirty-five yards. Oakenfull smashed over for a major score, while the Saints were out of the game.

Two minutes before full time Meralomas was routed behind the Westminster line for the final point of the game.

Regina Roughriders 10, Saskatoon Huskies 9.
Hilltopps 14, Concordia College 11 (exhibition).

EQUIPOSE TO MEET WINOOKA

Two Great Racing Champions Meet Over Seven Furlongs on November 7

Laurel, Md., Oct. 23.—Michael Poisson, trainer of the New Zealand horse, Winooka, has received a telegram from Rufus Naylor, manager of the invader's tour, that Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney has consented to run Equipse against Winooka as originally planned.

The disputed point was settled with the distance fixed at seven furlongs, scheduled for November 7 at the Belmont Park as a match race, Poisson said.

Naylor went to New York after the negotiations for the race had been dropped when Vanderbilt and Winooka's manager could not agree on the distance. Naylor wanted six or seven furlongs, and Equipse's owner asked for a mile race.

At the Lake Hill gymnasium on Friday night the home basketball team took two games from the visitors by small margins. In the opener the Lake Hill women won a hard-fought game from Jack Taylor's Cardinals by a score of 19 to 18. In the second game the Lake Hill senior men won from the Young Blue Ribbons 36 to 33.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 23.—George Gibson was named manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball team. Announcement that "Gibby" will be retained for the 1934 season was made by William H. Benenwanger, president of the club.

In the Penderay Cup race Monterey got away well, closely followed by Craigflower, leaving Victoria West well behind. BLUE RIBBONS ARE DEFEATED

Canadian Basketball Champs
Taken Into Camp 21 to 18
By Varsity

First Defeat Since Title Success; Beavers and Adverts Are Victors

Ernie Cook's Blue Ribbon hoopers suffered their first defeat since they captured the Canadian championship last season when the University of B.C. basketball squad downed them by a 21 to 18 score.

In an exhibition fixture at the High School gymnasium Saturday evening, The Ribbons, suffering from lack of good hand competition, did not display anything like the basketball they flashed in capturing the Dominion title last year, while the Varsity squad played good ball.

In the preliminary games the Adverts defeated the Maroons 51 to 5 in a women's senior B game, while Lake Hill gave the large crowd some great entertainment by forcing the fast-stepping Beaver intermediates to the limit before going down to a 38 to 32 defeat.

With close checking featuring the early play in the feature game, five minutes had elapsed before Weight went through the local defence for the opening score. Chuck Chapman came right back to tie the count, only to have Weight score again. Varsity then slowly but surely widened their lead to 14 to 7 at the rest interval.

Chuck Chapman was the only Victoria player that seemed to be able to score with any regularity, as he collected six of the seven points in this half.

PLAY SPEEDS UP
With the start of the final twenty minutes play speeded up, and the Beavers collected seven points to their opponents' two in the early part of the half to leave the score reading 16 to 14 in Varsity's favor.

The hopes of the local fans dimmed when Varsity ran the count up to 19 to 14, but Art Chapman and John Craig rallied to leave Victoria one point down. Weight, Varsity's basket just before the final whistle to leave Varsity with a three-point margin.

Bob Osborne, the Varsity skipper, turned in a great game, and was easily the outstanding player on the floor, while he was ably supported by all his team mates. The Chapman brothers were the pick of the Victoria squad, while Craig also turned in a nice game.

Lake Hill K. of P. came within an ace of scoring a great upset with the expense of the provincial championship intermediate B Beavers' team, and only a last-minute rally gave the Beavers victory. Lake Hill were leading 18 to 15 at the halfway mark, and although the champions passed them right after the start of the second half, the suburbanites regained the lead and held it until the final whistle.

Goldsmith with fourteen points saved the game for the Beavers with his great shooting from under the hoop, while Morgan turned in a great game for the losers.

Scoring practically at will, the Adverts easily downed the Maroons in the women's fixture. Mary Pedersen with five points was the leading scorer for the winners, while the balance of the team also turned in nice games.

Tommy Macedo refereed all games. The teams and individual scores follow:

University of B.C.—Bardley (1), Wulfford (2), Weight (9), Douglas (2), Nicholson (2), McDonald, Fringle (1), Hay (2), Osborne (8), Henderson (1).

Blue Ribbons—Peden, Craig (4), Martin, C. Chapman (8), A. Chapman (8), Robertson, Ross.

Beavers—Goldsmith (14), Ritchie, Fraser (5), Bourne (7), Shephard (6), Tubman (2), Fleming (2), Levy (2), Preston, McLeod.

NEVER thought of it that way? Most husbands and sons don't. But it's the truth, just the same. She's slaving away, week after week, over a steamy wash-tub, wrestling with soiled garments on a stubborn wash-board—not because she LIKES it—but because she's too unselfish to ask for a modern EASY Washer. She's saving you money for things you'll enjoy—maybe a few extra smokes, or a trip somewhere, or something for YOU around the house.

How long are you going to let her get away with it? Why not show her YOU can be unselfish, too—that her happiness means more to you than the few dollars she's trying to save you? A little figuring will tell you there's no economy in the old-fashioned way of washing clothes by rubbing and thumping and twisting, anyhow!

Now's the time to make the decision. We've just got a brand new EASY Vacuum Cup Washer at positively the lowest price for which it's ever been sold anywhere in the world. Isn't that worth looking into?

SUNSHINE INN HAS DEFICIT

Contributions Do Not Equal Outlay in Summer; Much Help Given

For the fourth successive month, Sunshine Inn showed a deficit in operating expenses in September, according to the report of Burgess J. Gadsden, founder and manager.

Total cash contributions for the month were $192 and the cash outlay was $215.19, leaving a deficit balance of $23.19. The deficit in June, July and August combined totaled $404.03, so that the institution has been forced to draw $427.21 from the reserve, which is controlled in trust by the Victoria Welfare Foundation.

In September the Inn served 7,728 meals to hungry applicants, bringing to a total of 167,263 the number served since the place was opened more than a year and a half ago. Of this total 99,130 meals were to children.

Working expenses of the Inn, Mr. Gadsden explained, amount to between $60 and $65 a month, which is paid by way of remuneration to members of the permanent staff who carry the responsibility of the departments. The manager receives no remuneration. The main needs consist of donations of provisions, meat and vegetables, and the most desirable form of contribution is in the way of a credit account at retail or wholesale stores. When the institution is unable to secure the necessary amounts of food in donations, it is necessary to pay cash in order to round out the menu.

So far the Inn has been maintained entirely by public support without grants from the city or government, and without the aid of day tags. Mr. Gadsden said he hoped that this record could be maintained.
